

House Wields Ax On President's Spending Requests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration food stamp and housing program requests face new slashes in the House on the heels of a near $1 billion congressional cut for housing aid and urban renewal projects.

The House Appropriations Committee has recommended a $50 million slice off the food stamp program in a money bill up for action today, plus cuts in two housing programs and a juvenile delinquency project.

The House was expected to go along with the committee cuts. President Johnson Monday signed the appropriation that knocked nearly $1 billion off his urban renewal and rent subsidies requests, the $14.57 billion appropriation for the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Congress cut a requested advance $1.3 billion for urban renewal projects in the next fiscal year to $750 million; a $1 billion model cities request to $625 million, and a $65 million contract authority request for rent subsidies to $30 million.

The new cuts were recommended by the Appropriations Committee Monday in a bill that was cut to $101 million from the administration's request for $270 million.

The committee's bill recommends appropriations of: —$20 million rather than the requested $90 million for the food stamp program that helps poor families get more food for their money. This would be in addition to the $225 million already appropriated for the program this fiscal year.

—$5 million to help pay interest costs on low-income housing construction, enough to cover contracts for $60 million worth of new housing. The administration asked $11.5 million to cover contracts for $150 million in construction.

—$1 million for enforcement of open-housing legislation rather than the $8 million requested by HUD. Another $300,000 sought by the Justice Department was completely eliminated.

—$5 million for a new program to aid states on control and prevention of juvenile delinquency. The administration asked $19.2 million.

A dozen money requests for other programs under the new housing-aid and open housing laws were cut out completely by the committee.

More Violence Hits Ireland

LONDON (AP) — Steel-helmeted riot police guarded strategic areas of Londonderry today after three homemade gasoline bombs exploded in a fresh outburst of nationalist violence gripping Northern Ireland's second largest city.

Prime Minister Terence O'Neill summoned his Cabinet in Belfast, the capital, to consider measures tightening security. The bombs were hurled at two police wagons crashing through a barricade of oil drums and timber that blocked a main approach to the city walls Monday night. The bombs missed.

It was the third successive night of clashes between police and nationalists denouncing "discrimination" against the country's Roman Catholic minority. Nearly 100 persons have been injured.

Police armed with clubs and shields moved in to disperse scores of stone-throwing teenagers taunting them with shouts of "Nais."

Prime Minister O'Neill returned Monday night from a visit to England, where he was invited to confer with Prime Minister Harold Wilson on the situation. But O'Neill preferred to go home first.

Political sources expected Wilson and O'Neill would get together sometime next week.

Study Vote In Finland

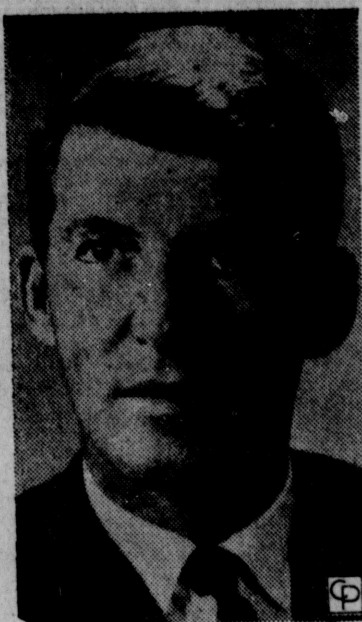

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Finland's Socialist parties suffered a surprising defeat in local elections Sunday and Monday dropping 7 per cent of their earlier strength to conservative and liberal parties.

About 3 million voters cast ballots under an electoral law that had lowered the voting age from 21 to 20. Some 241,000 young people voted.

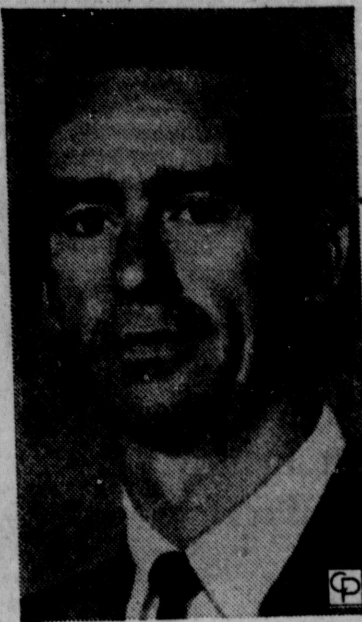

The non-socialist parties gained 57 per cent of the vote while the Socialists gathered only 43 per cent, a sharp decrease from the 50 per cent won in municipal elections in 1964.

The outcome surprised most political observers after the Social Democratic election victory in Sweden Sept. 15, when the non-Socialist parties dropped 7 per cent to strengthen the Social Democratic government to a position it has not enjoyed since the war.

3-Man Team Set For Space Trip Friday

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Rocket, spaceship and all other aspects of the flight were reported in excellent shape today as the Apollo 7 astronauts began final preparations for soaring into orbit Friday on this nation's first three-man space mission.

Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr., the command pilot Air Force Maj. Donn F. Eisele and civilian Walter Cunningham planned to spend most of the day in a spacecraft simulator practicing many of the maneuvers they are to conduct during an earth orbit trip scheduled to last nearly 11 days.

As preparations proceeded smoothly, Dr. George E. Mueller, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration associate administrator for manned space flight, said: "I feel Apollo 7 is as ready for flight as people can make it."

Schirra says the huge Saturn 1B rocket is almost as stable as the Brooklyn Bridge.

The vehicle "is almost overdesigned in the sense of safety and strength," Schirra said.

"It's very stable. This has eight engines on the bottom of it. One of those engines could fail and we would have no problems achieving orbit. In fact, two can fail as time goes on and we can still get into earth orbit," the 45-year-old astronaut said.

Blastoff of the Saturn 1B rocket is scheduled for 11 a.m. Friday. With its first stage generating 1.6-million pounds of thrust — more than the combined power of 100 jet fighter planes — the

Nixon Outlines Viet War Views

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon says, that if elected president, he would not step up the bombing of North Vietnam—and might even halt it if it would result in less loss of American lives.

He also said he would seek broader negotiations on Vietnam and would stand for "a peace that was generous."

The Republican presidential candidate, who spent Monday night in Buffalo before flying to rallies today in Flint, Mich., and Minneapolis, discussed all aspects of Vietnam at greater than usual length Monday. His forum was a conference in Washington of publishers and editors, sponsored by United Press International.

Responding to questions, Nixon said that he would not raise the current limited level of bombing involving North Vietnam and expressed that view that "we should stop the bombing when whoever is president is convinced it will result in less American lives lost rather than more American lives lost." He called that the key point and indicated he would weigh it carefully if elected.

The candidate, without elaborating, said, "I would broaden the diplomatic table to include more in the negotiations than presently are negotiated."

An adviser said Nixon always has contended that Vietnam talks could best be conducted in a context going beyond that country itself—to deal with other related problems in the area —and including other nations on both sides.

Nixon also declared that he would stand for a generous peace, but he did not go into details.

The former vice president got an hour-long briefing in New York City Monday morning from Secretary of State Dean Rusk. He reported that Rusk told him there was no significant change in the outlook for the Paris peace negotiations, but indicated it was still the hope of the Johnson administration "that they might be able to make some progress in the negotiations before the election."

Nixon later said that if Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey were elected, Humphrey would be hamstrung in trying to work out a Vietnam settlement.

Humphrey Urges Regular Summit Meets With Reds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey proposed today scheduled annual working summit conferences between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Such meetings, Humphrey said in a wide-ranging review of U.S.-Soviet relations, could become "forums for a new diplomacy, free of the publicity, free of the high expectations that surround irregular summit meetings."

The Democratic presidential nominee also urged the Soviet Union to call upon the North Vietnamese "to start negotiating seriously" at the Paris peace talks.

He also repeated a six-point formula for settlement of Middle East problems and pledged that "I shall be a peace president."

His speech was prepared for a luncheon session of the United Press International Editors and Publishers conference. His two rivals, Richard M. Nixon and George C. Wallace, addressed the conference Monday.

Humphrey returned to Washington late Monday after what he termed a good day of campaigning in Pennsylvania, where he drew enthusiastic responses to a series of sharp attacks on Nixon in speeches at Erie, Wilkes-Barre and Scranton.

Speaking before an overflow crowd of more than 5,000 in the University of Scranton Field House, Humphrey renewed the charge that Nixon is afraid to debate him and said the GOP candidate is being very careful this year.

Humphrey said in his UPI speech that he has "no illusions" about the difficulty of dealing with the Soviet Union, because its totalitarian government is "still unresponsive to the needs and wishes of its people."

"We may sometimes fail," he said, "but we must not fail to try."

On Vietnam, Humphrey noted that the Soviets have pledged to "take steps to build a lasting peace . . . to influence Hanoi, as soon as the United States stopped the bombing of North Vietnam."

Wallace Talks To Enthused Marylanders

Tells Hecklers After Election They're Done

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A rally of some 10,000 people in a sports arena Monday night was tailor-made for George C. Wallace's intense campaign style.

There were just enough hecklers—a few hundred to provide a noisy counterpoint to Wallace's hour-long discourse on the American scene.

Although there was little of the scuffling that has marked Wallace's campaign in some Northern cities, police used dogs and horses to move peace demonstrators away from the Baltimore Civic Center after the rally.

But the third party presidential candidate made them welcome in the hall earlier. He blew kisses, thanked them for "bringing me a million votes" and lifted his admirers to high pitch as he warned the "anarchists" that "you'd better have your day now because after Nov. 5 you won't have many days left."

The Wallace detractors filled one corner of the balcony and shouted "We want Hitler!" and "Go to hell, Wallace," and they sang "We Shall Overcome."

Wallace clapped in time to the civil-rights hymn. He blew some more kisses, then cleared his throat into a large white handkerchief and resumed his talk.

When the Wallace supporters began waving their fists and shouting "shut up!" at the demonstrators, Wallace soothed them. "They're all right. Let the police handle it. Let's all be in a good humor now."

At one point the former Alabama governor stepped from behind his bulletproof rostrum and walked to the edge of the stage to smile and bow at the demonstrators.

Shopping Center Heads Cooperative

Efforts Underway To Ease Lancaster Pike Traffic

"The Strip," a section of Lancaster Pike stretching from Main St. to Nicholas Drive, has been the site of at least six accidents and innumerable headaches in the past few months. The most recent accident involved two children Sunday.

But changes are now being planned in the area, described by the State Traffic Engineer as a traffic design nightmare. "It is only a shame that it takes a near tragedy to get people moving . . ." stated a member of the courthouse staff reflecting the opinion of her co-workers.

Plans for changing the "Strip," so named by a member of the city police department, were discussed by Circleville Mayor Richard L. Gerhardt Monday.

Major bottleneck of the area, according to the mayor, centers around the Kroger-Buckeye Mart shopping center. Moving traffic in and out of this center quickly and efficiently will facilitate traffic movement from the other 16 streets and public exits that converge in the area.

THE solution being pushed by Mayor Gerhardt calls for the creation of a third lane in front of the shopping area. The center lane would be used as a left turn lane, permitting through traffic to progress unobstructed. The center lane would also provide a merging lane for traffic leaving the shopping center.

The plan, designed and approved by the state traffic engineer and the deputy district director of the State Highway

Department, would also include closing of the entrances to the parking area and enlarging two entrances.

A traffic light, proposed by some members of the community would be considered for the exit of Nicholas Drive after a trial of the center lane.

To put the light any closer to Main St., stated Gerhardt, would cause a traffic back-up that would block the Route 56 intersection.

Cost to the city for the changes in the traffic pattern on Lancaster Pike would be "just paint," according to the Mayor, who stated that the road is already wide enough for three lanes.

The main obstacle in getting the changes off the drawing board, where they have been since spring, and into effect, has been a problem of communications among the city, businesses at the center and Bill Roth of Columbus, owner of the shopping center.

Roth, contacted on the telephone by The Herald Monday evening, stated that he had been unaware of the situation in Circleville. Previous attempts to negotiate changes in access to

Chicago Hit By Outbreaks In Schools

CHICAGO (AP) — Fifteen students were arrested and two policemen were injured Monday in disturbances at three Chicago high schools.

Negro student demands for more influence in the schools triggered the incidents at Harrison and Austin High Schools on the City's West Side. The arrest of a Negro student sparked the trouble at Morgan Park High School on the Southwest Side.

Classes were dismissed at Harrison after nine persons were arrested during a disturbance which followed a walkout by some 600 Negro pupils.

Tables and chairs were overturned and bottles thrown at police who forced pupils from the school's cafeteria. Police Sgt. John Moroney was hit in the head with a brick during the scuffle.

About 250 students later chartered buses to ride to the downtown offices of the Board of Education, where they presented officials with a list of grievances.

Among their demands were courses in Afro-American history, and more Negro teachers and administrators.

Harrison has some 3,300 students, about two-thirds of whom are Negro.

There were no arrests or injuries at Austin High School where 200 Negro students walked out in dissatisfaction over an assembly called to discuss grievances.

The pupils had demanded that Negroes teach Afro-American history, and also asked for more Negro teachers and counselors.

Nearly half the school's 3,000 students are Negro.

Six youths were arrested at Morgan Park when police broke up what they said was a penny-pitching game among Negro students outside the school. One of the students inflicted a cut over the eye of patrolman Glen Lanier.

U.S. Forces Kill 147 Reds Near Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — American ground and air forces battled North Vietnamese troops along the northwesterly approaches to Saigon and killed 147 of them in a two-day fight that raged on and off until just after noon today, the U.S. Command announced.

U.S. casualties were 8 men killed and 13 wounded in the battle with troops from the 101st North Vietnamese Army Regiment, an old adversary that long has operated in the area 28 miles northwest of Saigon. This is about midway between the Cambodian border and Saigon along prime infiltration corridors leading into the capital.

While this was the heaviest fighting reported by both the U.S. and South Vietnamese commands, allied troops on massive ground sweeps up and down the country continued to uncover tons of enemy munitions, food and medical supplies apparently stashed away for future attacks.

U. S. officers claim that he seizure of more than 150 tons of war supplies in recent weeks has hurt the enemy and may delay, if not abort, some of his planned attacks.

In many cases, enemy prisoners and defectors have led the allied troops to the caches.

Military spokesmen said about 12 fresh stockpiles of war materials and food were turned up Monday from north of Saigon to the demilitarized zone, some of it buried in coffins.

Infantrymen from the U.S. 1st Division ran across a battalion-sized enemy base camp four miles from the division headquarters and 20 miles north of Saigon. A search of the area turned up large quantities of supplies including 1,000 antipersonnel mines, 1,050 grenades, 87 bazooka-type rockets, 6 submachine guns and more than 1,000 pounds of medical equipment.

The developments come as U.S. officers weighed intelligence reports indicating the Communist Command may attempt "something big" in the way of a new offensive before the end of the year. Captured enemy officers are reported to have told interrogators they think Hanoi would like to make headlines about the time of the

Nov. 5 U.S. presidential election.

The informant's comment that the main North Vietnamese divisions and regiments appear to be avoiding a fight appeared to be backed up by the weekly figures released by the South Vietnamese command.

Government headquarters said 1,654 enemy troops were killed during the seven-day period ending at midnight last Saturday. While this figure is subject to readjustment, it was the

House Wields Ax On President's Spending Requests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration food stamp and housing program requests face new slashes in the House on the heels of a near $1 billion congressional cut for housing-aid and urban renewal projects.

The House Appropriations Committee has recommended a $50 million slice off the food stamp program in a money bill up for action today, plus cuts in two housing programs and a juvenile delinquency project.

The House was expected to go along with the committee cuts.

President Johnson Monday signed the appropriation that knocked nearly $1 billion off his urban renewal and rent subsidies requests, the $14.57 billion appropriation for the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Congress cut a requested advance $1.3 billion for urban renewal projects in the next fiscal year to $750 million; a $1 billion model cities request to $625 million, and a $65 million contract authority request for rent subsidies to $30 million.

The new cuts were recommended by the Appropriations Committee Monday in a bill that was cut to $101 million from the administration's request for $270 million.

The committee's bill recommends appropriations of:

—$20 million rather than the requested $90 million for the food stamp program that helps poor families get more food for their money. This would be in addition to the $225 million already appropriated for the program this fiscal year.

—$5 million to help pay interest costs on low-income housing construction, enough to cover contracts for $60 million worth of new housing. The administration asked $11.5 million to cover contracts for $150 million in construction.

—$1 million for enforcement of open-housing legislation rather than the $8 million requested by HUD. Another $300,000 sought by the Justice Department was completely eliminated.

—$5 million for a new program to aid states on control and prevention of juvenile delinquency. The administration asked $19.2 million.

A dozen money requests for other programs under the new housing-aid and open housing laws were cut out completely by the committee.

Study Vote In Finland

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Finland's Socialist parties suffered a surprising defeat in local elections Sunday and Monday dropping 7 per cent of their earlier strength to conservative and liberal parties.

About 3 million voters cast ballots under an electoral law that had lowered the voting age from 21 to 20. Some 241,000 young people voted.

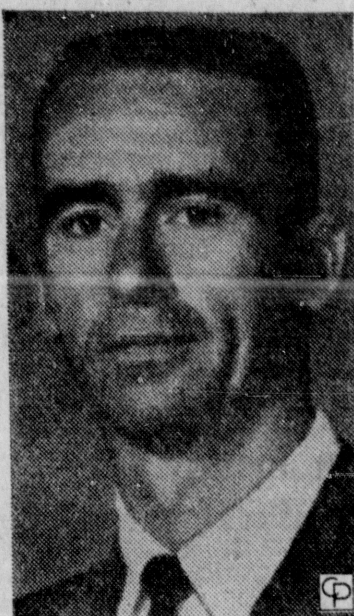

The non-socialist parties gained 57 per cent of the vote while the Socialists gathered only 43 per cent, a sharp decrease from the 50 per cent won in municipal elections in 1964.

The outcome surprised most political observers after the Social Democratic election victory in Sweden Sept. 15, when the non-Socialist parties dropped 7 per cent to strengthen the Social Democratic government to a position it has not enjoyed since the war.

Glenn Set For Speech At AP Meet

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Col. John H. Glenn, Jr., the first American to orbit the earth in space, will be the principal speaker at the Associated Press Society of Ohio's fall meeting in Dayton October 26.

Glenn, whose interests also include politics and youth physical fitness programs, will speak at the society's dinner that night.

Glenn, who retired from the Marine Corps in 1965 to enter private business, is expected to touch both on politics and the space program.

Mrs. Glenn also will attend the dinner.

Glenn is a native Ohioan. He was born in Cambridge and grew up in New Concord where he attended Muskingum College before joining the Marine Corps. In World War II he flew 59 missions in the Pacific supporting ground troops. In the Korean War, he flew 63 combat missions and shot down 3 communist planes. He earned five distinguished Flying Crosses and 19 air medals.

After the Korean War, Glenn became a test pilot and in 1957 became the first man to fly faster than the speed of sound from Los Angeles to New York City. He made the trip in three hours 23 minutes.

Glenn entered the Ohio primary in 1964 as a Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate, but had to withdraw after injuring his inner ear in a bathroom fall.

He was identified with the campaign efforts of the late Sen. Robert Kennedy for the Democratic presidential nomination before his assassination.

Classes were dismissed at Harrison after nine persons were arrested during a disturbance which followed a walkout by some 600 Negro pupils.

Tables and chairs were overturned and bottles thrown at police who forced pupils from the school's cafeteria. Police Sgt. John Moroney was hit in the head with a brick during the scuffle.

About 250 students later chartered buses to ride to the downtown offices of the Board of Education, where they presented officials with a list of grievances.

Among their demands were courses in Afro-American history, and more Negro teachers and administrators.

Harrison has some 3,300 students, about two-thirds of whom are Negro.

There were no arrests or injuries at Austin High School where 200 Negro students walked out in dissatisfaction over an assembly called to discuss grievances.

The pupils had demanded that Negroes teach Afro-American history, and also asked for more Negro teachers and counselors.

Nearly half the school's 3,000 students are Negro. Six youths were arrested at Morgan Park when police broke up what they said was a penny-pitching game among Negro students outside the school. One of the students inflicted a cut over the eye of patrolman Glen Lanier.

Department, would also include closing of the entrances to the parking area and enlarging two entrances.

A traffic light, proposed by some members of the community would be considered for the exit of Nicholas Drive after a trial of the center lane.

To put the light any closer to Main St., stated Gerhardt, would cause a traffic back-up that would block the Route 56 intersection.

Cost to the city for the changes in the traffic pattern on Lancaster Pike would be "just paint," according to the Mayor, who stated that the road is already wide enough for three lanes.

The main obstacle in getting the changes off the drawing board, where they have been since spring, and into effect, has been a problem of communications among the city, businesses at the center and Bill Roth of Columbus, owner of the shopping center.

Roth, contacted on the telephone by The Herald Monday evening, stated that he had been unaware of the situation in Circleville. Previous attempts to negotiate changes in access to

U.S. Forces Kill 147 Reds Near Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — American ground and air forces battled North Vietnamese troops along the northwestern approaches to Saigon and killed 147 of them in a two-day fight that raged on and off until just after noon today, the U.S. Command announced.

U.S. casualties were 8 men killed and 13 wounded in the battle with troops from the 101st North Vietnamese Army Regiment, an old adversary that long has operated in the area 28 miles northwest of Saigon. This is about midway between the Cambodian border and Saigon along prime infiltration corridors leading into the capital.

While this was the heaviest fighting reported by both the U.S. and South Vietnamese commands, allied troops on massive ground sweeps up and down the country continued to uncover tons of enemy munitions, food and medical stockpiles apparently stashed away for future attacks.

U. S. officers claim that he seizure of more than 150 tons of war supplies in recent weeks has hurt the enemy and may delay, if not abort, some of his planned attacks.

In many cases, enemy prisoners and defectors have led the allied troops to the caches.

Military spokesmen said about 12 fresh stockpiles of war materials and food were turned up Monday from north of Saigon to the demilitarized zone, some of it buried in coffins.

Infantrymen from the U.S. 1st Division ran across a battalion-sized enemy base camp four miles from the division headquarters and 20 miles north of Saigon. A search of the area turned up large quantities of supplies including 1,000 antipersonnel mines, 1,050 grenades, 87 bazooka-type rockets, 6 submachine guns and more than 1,000 pounds of medical equipment.

The developments come as U.S. officers weighed intelligence reports indicating the Communist Command may attempt "something big" in the way of a new offensive before the end of the year. Captured enemy officers are reported to have told interrogators they think Hanoi would like to make headlines about the time of the

Nov. 5 U.S. presidential election.

The informant's comment that the main North Vietnamese divisions and regiments appear to be avoiding a fight appeared to be backed up by the weekly figures released by the South Vietnamese command.

Government headquarters said 1,654 enemy troops were killed during the seven-day period ending at midnight last Saturday. While this figure is subject to readjustment, it was the

Gilligan Hits Saxbe For 'Double Talk'

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Democratic U.S. Senate candidate John J. Gilligan billed himself as a "one-man truth squad" today and accused his Republican opponent, William B. Saxbe, of "political double talk."

Gilligan told a news conference here Saxbe has taken "different positions on all sides of important issues," and charged the state attorney general with "telling people whatever he thinks they want to hear."

Gilligan produced copies of news reports and Saxbe campaign literature to document his allegations.

Gilligan said that on Sept. 26 in Cincinnati Saxbe called for the retirement of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, Sept. 28 in Columbus, Saxbe commended the extension of Hoover's retirement date, Gilligan said.

The Cincinnati Democrat also said Saxbe's claim of modernizing the penal system in Ohio was removed from Republican campaign literature after the summer uprisings at Ohio Penitentiary and other state prisons.

Gilligan also accused Saxbe of vacillating on gun control legislation.

Gilligan said Saxbe is a "political chameleon who is changing his positions" and renewed his call for a debate with the Republican.

In a debate, Gilligan said, Saxbe "would be forced to commit himself to certain specific positions."

Sen. Joseph Tydings, D-Md., will speak tonight in Columbus at a $100-a-plate fund-raising dinner for Gilligan.

rocket will be the most powerful ever used for a U.S. man-in-space flight.

The 224-foot-tall booster is to hurl Apollo 7 into an initial orbit ranging from 142 to 176 miles high. By firing their spacecraft engine, the astronauts will shift this path several times, reaching a maximum altitude of 262 miles.

While circling the globe 164 times, the astronauts are to test all of the craft's complex systems to qualify the Apollo ship for man-to-the-moon missions.

"One of the prime requisites of this flight," systems expert Cunningham said, "is to come back with the feeling that all of the spacecraft systems are capable of supporting a flight duration that would take you to the moon and back."

If the Apollo 7 flight is a success, the three-man Apollo 8 crew may attempt an eight-day voyage around the moon in December. That would be a vital rehearsal for a manned lunar landing next year.

A PROMISE to consider alterations as soon as a meeting could be arranged was made by Roth, who stated "We want to be good citizens and good neighbors and are more than willing to sit down and make plans for the change."

But both the city and Roth appeared to be waiting for the other side to make the first concrete move. Both sides expressed their willingness to talk, but neither side committed themselves to a time or to arranging the talks.

Finally Keith Reeves, manager of Kroger's, was contacted by The Herald Tuesday. Reeves, who has backed improvement of traffic safety at the center since his arrival in Circleville, stated that he would personally try to arrange a meeting between the zone manager of Kroger's, city leaders and Roth.

Reeves also volunteered that Kroger's would pay part of the costs of a traffic light on Lancaster Pike at the store's entrance if it were considered necessary.

But the changes proposed for Lancaster Pike are, at best, only temporary, according to the Mayor.

"If the real problem of traffic design in the area is to be solved, Lancaster Pike must be rerouted," Gerhardt emphasized.

A request to the State Department of Highways for changes in the route have been made by the Mayor. "Unfortunately it takes at least two years for the highway department to budget money for changes," the Mayor continued.

As for the rumors of a planned major change in the highway by the state, the Mayor reported that as of one year ago no such plans existed in the state's five-year projected plan.

Gilligan produced copies of news reports and Saxbe campaign literature to document his allegations.

Gilligan said that on Sept. 26 in Cincinnati Saxbe called for the retirement of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, Sept. 28 in Columbus, Saxbe commended the extension of Hoover's retirement date, Gilligan said.

The Cincinnati Democrat also said Saxbe's claim of modernizing the penal system in Ohio was removed from Republican campaign literature after the summer uprisings at Ohio Penitentiary and other state prisons.

Gilligan also accused Saxbe of vacillating on gun control legislation.

Gilligan said Saxbe is a "political chameleon who is changing his positions" and renewed his call for a debate with the Republican.

In a debate, Gilligan said, Saxbe "would be forced to commit himself to certain specific positions."

Sen. Joseph Tydings, D-Md., will speak tonight in Columbus at a $100-a-plate fund-raising dinner for Gilligan.

RARIN' TO GO—Apollo 7, the first manned flight of the Apollo series, is ready for blastoff at Cape Kennedy.

3-Man Team

The 224-foot-tall booster is to hurl Apollo 7 into an initial orbit ranging from 142 to 176 miles high. By firing their spacecraft engine, the astronauts will shift this path several times, reaching a maximum altitude of 262 miles.

While circling the globe 164 times, the astronauts are to test all of the craft's complex systems to qualify the Apollo ship for man-to-the-moon missions.

"One of the prime requisites of this flight," systems expert Cunningham said, "is to come back with the feeling that all of the spacecraft systems are capable of supporting a flight duration that would take you to the moon and back."

If the Apollo 7 flight is a success, the three-man Apollo 8 crew may attempt an eight-day voyage around the moon in December. That would be a vital rehearsal for a manned lunar landing next year.

Italy To Expel Russian Diplomat

ROME (AP)—The Italian government is preparing to expel an aide in the Soviet Embassy as a result of the uncovering of a spy ring operating inside the Italian Foreign Ministry.

Four Italians have been arrested in connection with a leak of confidential documents concerning the country's treaties with other governments. Two of those arrested work at the ministry. One is a private citizen and the fourth an employee of the defense department.

The Russian who is believed to have been their contact was identified by the Italian news agency ANSA as Ghenadi Roskov, an engineer.

Submitting claims for livestock killed by dogs were R. E. Streitenberger, $120; Charles E. Brown, $120; Joe Peters, $68; Ralph DeLay, $125.

Commissioners announced they have filed an appeal on the ASCS funds cut off when Ralph Starkey planted ornamental corn and corn to feed ponies on land at the children's home.

The land had been placed in the USDA feed-grain program.

Fines and bond forfeitures collected under city ordinances amounted to $981. The court costs collected from all types of criminal cases totaled $5,035.65.

The city of Circleville received these amounts, plus $2,913.30, which is 45 per cent of the Ohio Highway Patrol Fines and Bond forfeitures.

The city's total disbursement was $8,929.95 from the court for September. Pickaway County received $2,715.05. The state treasurer received $2,913.30. Other disbursements totaled $80.40.

There were 659 criminal cases filed during September and 599 cases completed.

In addition, 13 cases were filed on the civil docket of the court and seven of the cases were concluded.

In small claims court, 57 cases were filed, 23 cases concluded. The city received $46 in costs from the small claims division.

School Security Cleveland Issue

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Cleveland School Supt. Paul W. Briggs met Monday night with representatives of the Cleveland Teachers Union and promised a survey of security measures in all schools.

Improvements will be made where needed, Briggs said.

Special security measures were taken Monday at East High School, where teachers boycotted classes Friday in protest over disruption of classes by outside elements.

A heavy police patrol was provided outside the school, which is located near the heart of the Hough area.

Auto Stolen From Carport

An automobile owned by Elliott Wells, 484 E. Main St., was stolen from his home after midnight Monday.

Wells, who discovered the auto was missing shortly before 7 a.m. today, told police he had parked the auto in the carport and had removed the keys.

The auto license number is Y-952-L.

Supreme Court Rejects Anti-Viet Reservists' Bid

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court's 1968-69 term opened with an unusual burst of activity and some bad news for 256 soldiers: the Army can send them to Vietnam.

Forgoing the tradition of a brief but uneventful starting session, the justices Monday heard a lawyer for George C. Wallace plead for a place on Ohio's presidential ballot Nov. 5.

After a late afternoon conference, they dissolved an order by Justice William O. Douglas that had blocked the Army from sending the soldiers to Vietnam.

The 256 men—113 at Ft.

Meade, Md., and 143 at Ft. Lee, Va.—are reservists who were mobilized under a 1966 law.

They claimed their enlistment contract required a congressional declaration of war or of national emergency for mobilization.

Douglas agreed, but was overruled 8 to 1. The soldiers can file formal appeals, but by then they will be in the war zone.

In spite of court's action, attorneys for a California National Guard unit filed suit in Tacoma, Wash., alleging a call to active duty during last May's Pueblo crisis was illegal.

Noting Monday's Supreme Court ruling, the attorneys said they were going ahead because their case is broader and involves more issues.

The Wallace case tests the rights of Ohio to impose severe qualifications for third-party candidates. If the former Alabama governor wins, he will be on the ballot in all 50 states and presumably have a better chance in Ohio than if he had to rely on a write-in vote.

"The state stands shamefully alone," said Wallace's attorney, David J. Young of Columbus, in challenging the qualifications: a party primary and convention plus signatures amounting to at least 15 per cent of the vote in the last statewide election.

Charles S. Lopeman, chief counsel in the Ohio attorney general's office, said the state legislature is forbidden by the Constitution to impose racial or religious discrimination in elections.

But, he said, the legislature may "discriminate against the right of a voter to have a chance that his candidate win."

The Court is expected to rule by next Monday.

Correction

The fact that a special meeting had to be called for the presenting of a check for $25 to the Roundtown Nurses' Aide Assn. by the Veterans of Foreign Wars was omitted from a story in yesterday's paper, as was the fact that Margaret Good is vice president of the nurses' association.

Columbus Man Bound To Jury

George B. Largan Jr., Columbus, was bound to the Grand Jury by Municipal Court Judge Sterling Lamb Monday under $1,000 bond.

Largan was charged with an attempted burglary of a vending machine by Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Richard Clark. The alleged incident occurred at the Bonded Service Station on Route 23 Oct. 3.

A PROMISE to consider alterations as soon as a meeting could be arranged was made by Roth, who stated "We want to be good citizens and good neighbors and are more than willing to sit down and make plans for the change."

But both the city and Roth appeared to be waiting for the other side to make the first concrete move. Both sides expressed their willingness to talk, but neither side committed themselves to a time or to arranging the talks.

Finally Keith Reeves, manager of Kroger's, was contacted by The Herald Tuesday. Reeves, who has backed improvement of traffic safety at the center since his arrival in Circleville, stated that he would personally try to arrange a meeting between the zone manager of Kroger's, city leaders and Roth.

Reeves also volunteered that Kroger's would pay part of the costs of a traffic light on Lancaster Pike at the store's entrance if it were considered necessary.

But the changes proposed for Lancaster Pike are, at best, only temporary, according to the Mayor.

"If the real problem of traffic design in the area is to be solved, Lancaster Pike must be rerouted," Gerhardt emphasized.

A request to the State Department of Highways for changes in the route have been made by the Mayor. "Unfortunately it takes at least two years for the highway department to budget money for changes, the Mayor continued. As for the rumors of a planned major change in the highway by the state, the Mayor reported that as of one year ago no such plans existed in the state's five-year projected plan.

Soviets Push Way Deeper Into Mideast

Bu ELIAS ANTAR
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—The Soviet Union has won important new footholds in Arab countries in the 16 months since the 1967 Middle East war.

The Russians have rearmored Egypt, Syria and Iraq and increased the Soviet presence there. They are active in seven out of the Arab League's 14 states—Egypt, Syria, Iraq, Yemen, South Yemen, Algeria and Sudan.

The Kremlin has increased its naval presence in the eastern Mediterranean to a record 44 ships, including the aircraft carrier Moskva which is capable of landing Russian marines by helicopter.

Unconfirmed reports say the Russians are surveying the Syrian port of Tartus to establish facilities there. Soviet ships are said to have already established a permanent presence in Alexandria and Port Said.

Newly involved with the Soviet Union are Yemen, Sudan and the former British colony of Aden, now called the South Yemen People's Republic.

Last December, when the pullout of Egyptian troops from Yemen was imminent, the Russians agreed to supply the republican government with a squadron each of fighters and bombers.

In April, a shipment of 22 tanks plus rocket-equipped armored vehicles, self-propelled guns and ammunition arrived in Yemen. Forty Yemeni officers went to Russia last month for weapons training.

Now the Yemen premier and strongman, Lt. Gen. Hassan el Amri, is in Moscow to work out a new arms agreement. He has said a new offensive by his royalist opponents, backed by neighboring pro-Western Saudi Arabia, is imminent.

Sudan, in Africa, has signed a $96-million arms agreement with Russia, including MIG jets, antiaircraft weapons and tanks. Sudanese officers are in the Soviet Union for training.

Following the approval of the arms deal in July, a new Soviet ambassador was appointed in Khartoum because, in the words of Pravda, "the atmosphere is becoming ever more favorable for the development of cooperation" with Communist countries.

Sudan formerly bought its arms largely from Britain.

South Yemen wrested independence from Britain last November and a leftist government was installed. It promptly threatened to block the Red Sea's southern outlet to Israeli shipping.

Three months later, the government fired 40 British pilots, navy specialists and army advisers for allegedly being "spies and counterrevolutionaries."

In late March, a Soviet military delegation came to Aden to study its defense needs, followed by the first Soviet ambassador at the end of April.

Four months later, the impoverished government signed a military and technical assistance agreement with the Soviets. A gift shipment of 4,000 small automatic weapons and 65 military vehicles had arrived in July.

The Iraqi government, whose army is mostly Soviet-supplied, last February entered into negotiations with France for Mirage fighters and armored cars. The new regime which took over after a coup in July took a hard new look at the proposed deal and apparently decided to continue with Russia.

An Iraqi military delegation under the chief of Staff, Maj. Gen. Ibrahim Ansari, has just visited Moscow, presumably seeking new arms to bolster Iraqi troops in Jordan.

Film Guide Is Adopted By Industry

NEW YORK (AP)—The movie industry, for the first time in its history, has adopted a film rating system which will restrict admission to some movies it considers unsuitable for young people.

The ratings are to be enforced voluntarily by individual theater managers.

The classification program goes into effect Nov. 1, when films will be rated in four categories:

G—for general audiences;

M—for mature audiences (adults);

R—young people will not be admitted unless accompanied by a parent or an adult guardian;

X—young people will not be admitted.

The minimum age is generally accepted as 17 under the plan, but may vary between 16 and 18 according to individual states and cities.

Details of the plan, which has been in the works for several months, were announced today by Jack Valenti, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, along with Julian Rifkin, president of the National Association of Theatre Owners, and Munio Podhorzer, a member of the governing committee of the International Film Importers and Distributors of America.

Tips On Fire Prevention

Fuses are "safety valves" for electric circuits. A blown fuse means the circuit is overloaded or defective.

Be sure your fuses are the right size for your circuits—usually 15 amperes for circuits for lights.

Choose UL-listed electric appliances and cords.

Have a competent electrician make repairs and extend wiring when necessary.

Do not obstruct the ventilation required for the TV set. Don't install your TV in a tight cubicle unless it is especially designed for such installation. Leave TV repair to qualified repairmen.

16 Belgians Die Of Asphyxiation

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—Because of the weather, 16 Belgians died in their homes over the weekend from carbon monoxide poisoning, authorities said today.

Mild, wet weather over the nation produced a layer of warm atmosphere which prevented fumes from household coal fires and stoves escaping efficiently through chimneys, officials said.

Soviets Push Way Deeper Into Mideast

Bu ELIAS ANTAR
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—The Soviet Union has won important new footholds in Arab countries in the 16 months since the 1967 Middle East war.

The Russians have rearmored Egypt, Syria and Iraq and increased the Soviet presence there. They are active in seven out of the Arab League's 14 states—Egypt, Syria, Iraq, Yemen, South Yemen, Algeria and Sudan.

The Kremlin has increased its naval presence in the eastern Mediterranean to a record 44 ships, including the aircraft carrier Moskva which is capable of landing Russian marines by helicopter.

Unconfirmed reports say the Russians are surveying the Syrian port of Tartus to establish facilities there. Soviet ships are said to have already established a permanent presence in Alexandria and Port Said.

Newly involved with the Soviet Union are Yemen, Sudan and the former British colony of Aden, now called the South Yemen People's Republic.

Last December, when the pull-out of Egyptian troops from Yemen was imminent, the Russians agreed to supply the republican government with a squadron each of fighters and bombers.

In April, a shipment of 22 tanks plus rocket-equipped armored vehicles, self-propelled guns and ammunition arrived in Yemen. Forty Yemeni officers went to Russia last month for weapons training.

Now the Yemeni premier and strongman, Lt. Gen. Hassan el Amri, is in Moscow to work out a new arms agreement. He has said a new offensive by his royalist opponents, backed by neighboring pro-Western Saudi Arabia, is imminent.

Sudan, in Africa, has signed a $96-million arms agreement with Russia, including MIG jets, aircraft weapons and tanks. Sudanese officers are in the Soviet Union for training.

Following the approval of the arms deal in July, a new Soviet ambassador was appointed in Khartoum because, in the words of Pravda, "the atmosphere is becoming ever more favorable for the development of cooperation" with Communist countries.

Sudan formerly bought its arms largely from Britain.

South Yemen wrested independence from Britain last November and a leftist government was installed. It promptly threatened to block the Red Sea's southern outlet to Israeli shipping.

Three months later, the government fired 40 British pilots, navy specialists and army advisers for allegedly being "spies and counterrevolutionaries."

In late March, a Soviet military delegation came to Aden to study its defense needs, followed by the first Soviet ambassador at the end of April.

Four months later, the impoverished government signed a military and technical assistance agreement with the Soviets. A gift shipment of 4,000 small automatic weapons and 65 military vehicles had arrived in July.

The Iraqi government, whose army is mostly Soviet-supplied, last February entered into negotiations with France for Mirage fighters and armored cars. The new regime which took over after a coup in July took a hard new look at the proposed deal and apparently decided to continue with Russia.

An Iraqi military delegation under the chief of Staff, Maj. Gen. Ibrahim Ansari, has just visited Moscow, presumably seeking new arms to bolster Iraqi troops in Jordan.

Film Guide Is Adopted By Industry

NEW YORK (AP)—The movie industry, for the first time in its history, has adopted a film rating system which will restrict admission to some movies it considers unsuitable for young people.

The ratings are to be enforced voluntarily by individual theater managers.

The classification program goes into effect Nov. 1, when films will be rated in four categories:

- G—for general audiences;
- M—for mature audiences (adults);
- R—young people will not be admitted unless accompanied by a parent or an adult guardian;
- X—young people will not be admitted.

The minimum age is generally accepted as 17 under the plan, but may vary between 16 and 18 according to individual states and cities.

Details of the plan, which has been in the works for several months, were announced today by Jack Valenti, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, along with Julian Rifkin, president of the National Association of Theatre Owners, and Munio Podhorzer, a member of the governing committee of the International Film Importers and Distributors of America.

Tips On Fire Prevention

Fuses are "safety valves" for electric circuits. A blown fuse means the circuit is overloaded or defective.

Be sure your fuses are the right size for your circuits—usually 15 amperes for circuits for lights.

Choose UL-listed electric appliances and cords.

Have a competent electrician make repairs and extend wiring when necessary.

Do not obstruct the ventilation required for the TV set. Don't install your TV in a tight cubicle unless it is especially designed for such installation. Leave TV repair to qualified repairmen.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — The payroll nationally couldn't cause of alcoholism among cost an employer less than workers isn't known, but the cost is: upwards of $4 billion a year.

And that figure is a conservative one, says Ross VonWiegand, industrial consultant to the National Council on Alcoholism. Some management sources put it as high as $7.5 billion a year.

"Our figures are those that can't be gone below," VonWiegand said. "We figure a minimum of 5.3 per cent of the total work force, or about 3 million employed people, has alcoholism. Every active alcoholic on the payroll nationally couldn't cost an employer less than $1,585 a year. But these are fairly conservative figures. They could run much higher."

The cost figure, VonWiegand said, includes lost time, sick leave pay, accident pay resulting from alcoholism, disability payments, and earlier retirement payments.

It also includes the hard-to-calculate costs run up by the hungover worker who is on the job but isn't performing as well as he would normally.

"There's a warm body there, but he isn't functioning," VonWiegand said. "He's a half-a-man."

Stephen Habbe, in an article dealing with alcoholism and the business community in the October issue of "The Conference Board Record," notes:

"Problem drinkers that cause their companies the greatest losses usually are fairly long-service employees in the 35-to-50 age range. A company is apt to have a considerable investment in these workers, and they are not easily replaced. This is especially true of those at the manager and executive echelons."

In an effort to combat alcoholism and its effects, Habbe said, "many companies that did not have alcohol-control programs in 1958 have them today."

He said the Conference Board made a study in 1958 and again this year of the views and attitudes of top executives of 100 companies on alcoholism and drinking problems. Fifty of those queried responded, he said, and, "although there are wide differences... the consensus shows concern for those with drinking problems and an interest in company programs of control and rehabilitation." Habbe said the latest study showed "a greater awareness on the part of the executive of the alcohol problem in business, and a new readiness to take steps to deal with it."

Ten years ago, he said, 21 of the 50 companies replied that if they did have an alcohol problem it was nothing to worry about but in the latest study only 16 gave this answer.

"Ten years ago, three companies said their problem with alcohol was serious enough to give them concern. Today nine are concerned. The remaining companies take mild positions."

While more companies today recognize the alcohol problem as a serious one, Habbe said, "this change gives little solace to serious students of alcoholism, who point out that relatively few companies perceive the true dimensions of the drinking problems in their organizations, and that still fewer have been motivated to the point of instituting control programs."

VonWiegand agreed that while some progress was being made toward recognizing alcoholism as an illness "in the great majority of cases not too much progress has been made here." Every company that doesn't have an alcoholism program, he said, "does have an unwritten policy that says, essentially, management will pay cash prizes and other economic premiums to any employee who can successfully conceal his alcoholism."

"The man who admits he has been out on a binge won't get sick pay. But if he can conceal this, he gets paid."

"The employee who no longer can conceal his alcoholism usually is fired."

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1871, the Great Chicago Fire was touched off when a cow kicked over a lantern in Mrs. O'Leary's barn.

On this date in 1776, the Spanish mission at San Francisco was founded.

In 1903, the United States and China signed a commercial treaty.

In 1912, Montenegro declared war against Turkey.

In 1934, Bruno Richard Hauptmann was indicted for murder in the kidnapping and death of the infant son of Charles A. Lindbergh.

In 1918, World War I hero Sgt.

Alvin C. York killed 20 German soldiers in the Argonne forest in France.

In 1953, a crisis arose as the United States and Britain announced they planned to withdraw occupation forces and permit Italy to administer part of disputed Trieste.

Ten years ago — Communist China was observing a one-week halt in the shelling of Quemoy and other Nationalist Chinese offshore islands.

Five years ago — British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan was hospitalized for an operation, leaving leadership of the Conservative party in doubt.

One year ago — Democratic leaders picked Chicago as the site of the party's 1968 national convention.

Try and Stop Me

AMONG other notable accomplishments, W. C. Fields held several records for the amount of intoxicating liquor he could imbibe at one sitting. Asked once how he survived, he insisted, "I really do not drink much at all. I merely keep on hand a reasonable supply of medicinal stimulants in the event that I encounter a venomous snake—which I also keep on hand."

A hard-working foreman had a weekend all to himself when his wife jetted out to visit their married daughter. So he had a ball painting the porch furniture, scrubbing the kitchen floor, polishing silverware—odd jobs that had needed doing for a long time. "When your wife gets home," hazarded a friend, "I'll bet she'll be tickled pink." "Obviously you don't know my wife," replied the foreman grimly. "She'll be so mad that she won't speak to me for a week!"

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

The study of the total health of the total patient has emerged from the dark era when mental disease was referred to in hushed terms in the close confines of the home. It is indeed an achievement that people with emotional problems are now openly urged to seek the advice of doctors, psychiatrists, psychologists, social workers and religious advisers. Each of these can in his own way make an important and vital contribution to the individual who is beset by neuroticisms that interfere with his productivity and his personal happiness.

There is a great deal of confusion in the minds of people about whom to consult, mainly because they do not know the differences between these trained people and their particular approach to emotional problems.

The psychiatrist is a physician with an M.D. degree who, after a complete university and medical school training, has dealt with patients with physical disorders during his internship. Later he undertook a special residency program in his specialty, studying the wide spectrum of mental diseases, psychosis and neurosis. Almost always this doctor has had a personal psychoanalysis which is considered essential for the objective understanding of the problems of his patients.

The psychiatrist later identifies himself with a special school of psychoanalysis and uses one or more techniques to attain his ultimate aim, the emotional security of his patients. He may use individual or group psychotherapy, behavioral methods, hypnosis and drugs, depending on the individual needs of his specific patient.

A psychologist is a highly trained specialist who has acquired the important and difficult degree of Ph.D. To attain this it is necessary to devote as many years as it takes a psychiatrist to become one. The clinical psychologist is not an M.D. and therefore is not allowed to use drugs in his practice without the consultation and supervision of a physician.

The psychologist, too, identifies himself with a specific school of psychotherapy and uses every technique used by the psychiatrist except for drugs. Both the psychiatrist and the psychologist must pass rigid examinations and are licensed only after their training has met the most exacting requirements.

Marine Given Jail Sentence

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — Marine Lance Cpl. Anthony Licciardo Jr., 20, of Lowell, Mass., was sentenced by a general court martial today to two years in prison in connection with the hanging death of a Vietnamese civilian.

Licciardo, the fifth of seven Marines to be tried in the slayings of five Vietnamese civilians near Hue May 5-6, had pleaded guilty to a charge of unpremeditated murder.

The sentence included a bad conduct discharge and forfeiture of all pay and allowances.

Philippines Have Some U.S. Rockets

MANILA (AP) — The Philippine Air Force has had a number of small U.S.-provided missiles for more than a year, President Ferdinand E. Marcos disclosed Sunday night. Marcos did not specify the number or type of missiles in his radio address.

A Non-Stereotype Enemy

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

WEATHERFORD, Texas — You drop into the Wallace headquarters of a small Texas town, the "watermelon capital of the U.S.," as it advertises itself, and you get something of a shock. Two men and a woman are sitting around. They don't give you any of the old cliché stuff about "nigras." Their pitch for George Wallace is all high-level, revolving around abstract questions of the rights of man under the Constitution (such as the right to dispose of one's property as one sees fit — an obvious slap at the open housing law). And the literature they press upon you leads off with the story of how George Wallace, as a bantamweight Golden Gloves amateur boxer, came to the rescue of a little Negro boy who was being bullied by white ruffians.

Before you give away the fact that you are personally a Nixon man, the question of Earl Warren and Abe Fortas and the Supreme Court comes up. Again, the Wallace people don't hand you any of the "impeach Earl Warren" line associated with the radical right. What you get is a high-level argument about the sections of the Bill of Rights which specify that certain things are to be left to the jurisdiction of the states and the individual citizens thereof.

At a time when Nixon is under criticism for conducting a high-level campaign, this is interesting. The Wallace crowd is high-leveling it, too, and with a vengeance.

The question naturally arises, how do you deal with an enemy who is not conforming to stereotype? Nixon has been ignoring the person of Hubert Humphrey, and nobody can say he is wrong in this, for his lead over Humphrey has increased from poll to poll. But the tactic of never mentioning Wallace doesn't seem to work, for the Wallace campaign keeps picking up support, and in areas that would not, in times gone by, have been called kook by any means.

Wallace has been labelled a demagogue, but in assuming the role of the believer in law and order and the States' Rights provisions of the Constitution he is making his bid to people on a thoroughly rational level. Being against rioting and crime in the streets at a time when these are manifestly increasing, and being against trucking to Communists when the Soviets are invading the neutral nation of Czechoslovakia, is obviously not demagogic. It is simply common sense, and, somehow, Wallace has been convincing people that he would do more about restoring law and order to U.S. cities and firmness to U.S. foreign affairs than either Nixon or Humphrey. A lot of people are going to vote for him purely on a basis of what he says.

Wallace's demagoguery, however, consists not in what he says, but in what he doesn't say. As Humphrey, not Nixon, said the other day, the crime statistics do not show that Wallace's own state of Alabama has had any more success than the northern States or the District of Columbia, in defending law and order on a practical level. As a matter of fact, the murder rate in Alabama has been the highest in the nation, and this at a time when Wallace or his wife sat in the Governor's chair. If Wallace were President, and forced to back up his promises about defending law and order, how would he compel his own home state to conform to his professed desires? He couldn't do it by sending in the federal troops, for that would be against his own reading of the Bill of Rights.

Again, Wallace has been saying some quite sensible things about stopping the spread of socialism. But, as Governor of Alabama, he never objected to taking federal funds, and it was Barry Goldwater, not Wallace, who suggested selling TVA to southern private utility enterprise.

Nixon, belatedly, has begun to move into some of the spheres that have been pre-empted by Wallace. He actually named the name of Attorney General Ramsey Clark the other night as someone who had "failed in energy, will and purpose" in combating crime. This may be the way to bring back some of the voters who have threatened to stray to Wallace as the more forthright man on law and order. But it will take a lot of specifics on the part of Nixon to keep Wallace from winning more and more votes among those who take the Wallace appeal to law and order at face value.

Views on Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — If network television's situation comedies come up suddenly with an epidemic of weddings, don't blame the script writers. It's the romance-loving public.

Several seasons back "The Farmer's Daughter," a pleasant show with rather unexciting Nielsen ratings, had Inger Stevens in the title role marrying William Windom who played a congressman. The day the wedding show was aired, the ratings jumped into the top 10.

When Betty Jo of "Petticoat Junction" married her croupier fiancé last season, the same thing happened.

And last month when "The Andy Griffith Show" turned into "Mayberry R.F.D." on CBS, Sheriff Andy Taylor—Griffith's character—marched down the aisle with his Helen, the program attracted more than one-third of the 57-million TV homes and was tuned in by more than half the sets in use at that time.

The program, according to a Nielsen survey, was the most popular show during the week of Sept. 23 through 29, a period when both ABC and CBS were introducing their new programs. The audience survey for that week of premiere shows indicated that the mass audience seemed more interested in watching old favorites than inspecting the new crop.

Following "Mayberry R.F.D." in the top 10 list were CBS's "Here's Lucy"—new title for Lucille Ball's show—and "Family Affair"; NBC's "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In" and "Bonanza" CBS's "Doris

Day Show," Carol Burnett Show" and "Gomer Pyle," and NBC's Bob Hope Comedy Special and "Julia."

Only the Doris Day program and "Julia" are new series, but now that Andy Griffith will become only an occasional guest star in "Mayberry R.F.D." perhaps that, too, should count as a new series when later, more definitive ratings become available.

Ken Berry, as farmer Sam Jones, is an attractive young man who projects a kind of wholesome, shy charm. He plays a widower with a small boy, and is surrounded by the old crowd from "The Andy Griffith Show" and has even taken on Aunt Bee—Frances Bavier—as housekeeper.

The series remains warm and pleasant and can only be faulted for the predictability and occasionally the overenthusiastic use of a laugh track.

The British-made "Avengers," the last of the tongue-in-cheek superagent series, came back with the same outside, bizarre plots. On Monday night the cool, clever team of John Steed and Tara King confounded some villains who had developed head cold germs to such a diabolic point that one whiff sent the victims into deadly fits of sneezing. Steed and Miss King—played by Patrick Macnee and Linda Thorson—have such composure and irrepressible wit with what they exchange wisecracks when she is dangling from a steam pipe and dead villains surround them.

Before you give away the fact that you are personally a Nixon man, the question of Earl Warren and Abe Fortas and the Supreme Court comes up. Again, the Wallace people don't hand you any of the "impeach Earl Warren" line associated with the radical right. What you get is a high-level argument about the sections of the Bill of Rights which specify that certain things are to be left to the jurisdiction of the states and the individual citizens thereof.

At a time when Nixon is under criticism for conducting a high-level campaign, this is interesting. The Wallace crowd is high-leveling it, too, and with a vengeance.

The question naturally arises, how do you deal with an enemy who is not conforming to stereotype? Nixon has been ignoring the person of Hubert Humphrey, and nobody can say he is wrong in this, for his lead over Humphrey has increased from poll to poll. But the tactic of never mentioning Wallace doesn't seem to work, for the Wallace campaign keeps picking up support, and in areas that would not, in times gone by, have been called kook by any means.

Wallace has been labelled a demagogue, but in assuming the role of the believer in law and order and the States' Rights provisions of the Constitution he is making his bid to people on a thoroughly rational level.

Being against rioting and crime in the streets at a time when these are manifestly increasing, and being against trucking to Communists when the Soviets are invading the neutral nation of Czechoslovakia, is obviously not demagoguery. It is simply common sense, and, somehow, Wallace has been convincing people that he would do more about restoring law and order to U.S. cities and firmness to U.S. foreign affairs than either Nixon or Humphrey. A lot of people are going to vote for him purely on a basis of what he says.

Wallace's demagoguery, however, consists not in what he says, but in what he doesn't say. As Humphrey, not Nixon, said the other day, the crime statistics do not show that Wallace's own state of Alabama has had any more success than the northern States or the District of Columbia, in defending law and order on a practical level. As a matter of fact, the murder rate in Alabama has been the highest in the nation, and this at a time when Wallace or his wife sat in the Governor's chair. If Wallace were President, and forced to back up his promises about defending law and order, how would he compel his own home state to conform to his professed desires? He couldn't do it by sending in the federal troops, for that would be against his own reading of the Bill of Rights.

Again, Wallace has been saying some quite sensible things about stopping the spread of socialism. But, as Governor of Alabama, he never objected to taking federal funds, and it was Barry Goldwater, not Wallace, who suggested selling TVA to southern private utility enterprise.

Nixon, belatedly, has begun to move into some of the spheres that have been pre-empted by Wallace. He actually named the name of Attorney General Ramsey Clark the other night as someone who had "failed in energy, will and purpose" in combating crime. This may be the way to bring back some of the voters who have threatened to stray to Wallace as the more forthright man on law and order. But it will take a lot of specifics on the part of Nixon to keep Wallace from winning more and more votes among those who take the Wallace appeal to law and order at face value.

Views on Television

NEW YORK (AP) — If network television's situation comedies come up suddenly with an epidemic of weddings, don't blame the script writers. It's the romance-loving public.

Several seasons back "The Farmer's Daughter," a pleasant show with rather unexciting Nielsen ratings, had Inger Stevens in the title role marrying William Windom who played a congressman. The day the wedding show was aired, the ratings jumped into the top 10.

When Betty Jo of "Petticoat Junction" married her crocheter fiancé last season, the same thing happened.

And last month when "The Andy Griffith Show" turned into "Mayberry R.F.D." on CBS, Sheriff Andy Taylor-Griffith's character—marched down the aisle with his Helen, the program attracted more than one-third of the 57-million TV homes and was tuned in by more than half the sets in use at that time.

The program, according to a Nielsen survey, was the most popular show during the week of Sept. 23 through 29, a period when both ABC and CBS were introducing their new programs.

The audience survey for that week of premiere shows indicated that the mass audience seemed more interested in watching old favorites than in inspecting the new crop.

Following "Mayberry R.F.D." in the top 10 list were CBS' "Here's Lucy"—new title for Lucille Ball's show—and "Family Affair"; NBC's "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In" and "Bonanza" CBS' "Doris

Day Show," Carol Burnett Show" and "Gomer Pyle," and NBC's Bob Hope Comedy Special and "Julia."

Only the Doris Day program and "Julia" are new series, but now that Andy Griffith will become only an occasional guest star in "Mayberry R.F.D." perhaps that, too, should count as a new series when later, more definitive ratings become available.

Ken Berry, as farmer Sam Jones, is an attractive young man who projects a kind of wholesome, shy charm. He plays a widower with a small boy, and is surrounded by the old crowd from "The Andy Griffith Show" and has even taken on Aunt Bee—Frances Bavier—as housekeeper.

The series remains warm and pleasant and can only be faulted for the predictability and occasionally the over-the-top use of a laugh track.

The British-made "Avengers," the last of the tongue-in-cheek superagent series, came back with the same outside, bizarre plots. On Monday night the cool, clever team of John Steed and Tara King confounded some villains who had developed head cold germs to such a diabolic point that one whiff sent the victims into deadly fits of sneezing. Steed and Miss King—played by Patrick Macnee and Linda Thorson—have CBS' "Here's Lucy"—new title for Lucille Ball's show—and "Family Affair"; NBC's "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In" and "Bonanza" CBS' "Doris

Day Show," Carol Burnett Show" and "Gomer Pyle," and NBC's Bob Hope Comedy Special and "Julia."

AMONG other notable accomplishments, W. C. Fields held several records for the amount of intoxicating liquor he could imbibe at one sitting. Asked once how he survived, he insisted, "I really do not drink much at all. I merely keep on hand a reasonable supply of medicinal stimulants in the event that I encounter a venomous snake—which I also keep on hand."

A hard-working foreman had a weekend all to himself when his wife jetted out to visit their married daughter. So he had a ball painting the porch furniture, scrubbing the kitchen floor, polishing silverware—odd jobs that had needed doing for a long time. "When your wife gets home," hazarded a friend, "I'll bet she'll be tickled pink." "Obviously you don't know my wife," replied the foreman grimly. "She'll be so mad that she won't speak to me for a week!"

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

The study of the total health of the total patient has emerged from the dark era when mental disease was referred to in hushed terms in the close confines of the home. It is indeed an achievement that people with emotional problems are now openly urged to seek the advice of doctors, psychiatrists, psychologists, social workers and religious advisers. Each of these can in his own way make an important and vital contribution to the individual who is beset by neuroticisms that interfere with his productivity and his personal happiness.

There is a great deal of confusion in the minds of people about whom to consult, mainly because they do not know the differences between these trained people and their particular approach to emotional problems.

The psychiatrist is a physician with an M.D. degree who, after a complete university and medical school training, has dealt with patients with physical disorders during his internship. Later he undertook a special residency program in his specialty, studying the wide spectrum of mental diseases, psychosis and neurosis. Almost always this doctor has had a personal psychoanalysis which is considered essential for the objective understanding of the problems of his patients.

The psychiatrist later identifies himself with a special school of psychoanalysis and uses one or more techniques to attain his ultimate aim, the emotional security of his patients. He may use individual or group psychotherapy, behavioral methods, hypnosis and drugs, depending on the individual needs of his specific patient.

A psychologist is a highly trained specialist who has acquired the important and difficult degree of Ph.D. To attain this it is necessary to devote as many years as it takes a psychiatrist to become one. The clinical psychologist is not an M.D. and therefore is not allowed to use drugs in his practice without the consultation and supervision of a physician.

The psychologist, too identifies himself with a specific school of psychotherapy and uses every technique used by the psychiatrist except for drugs. Both the psychiatrist and the psychologist must pass rigid examinations and are licensed only after their training has met the most exacting requirements.

Social workers offer psychological guidance but not psychoanalysis. They, too, are licensed and must satisfy training requirements. Usually they have not continued their studies beyond obtaining a Bachelor or Master degree. They serve a most important function for the many people who do not need intensive therapy and who cannot afford long and extensive treatment.

Finding an excellent psychiatrist, psychologist or social worker cannot and must not be haphazard. There is too much involved in this important decision. A casual suggestion by a friend is not reliable enough for one to invest his destiny in it. A person in emotional distress is not usually able to choose the ideal person, without proper guidance.

The general physician is the bulwark of support of his patients. His judgment and choice is far more reliable than one's own since he knows the social and emotional background of his patients and their emotional needs. He knows and can find the best qualified person for such help.

Marine Given Jail Sentence

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — Marine Lance Cpl. Anthony Licciardo Jr., 20, of Lowell, Mass., was sentenced by a general court martial today to two years in prison in connection with the hanging death of a Vietnamese civilian.

Licciardo, the fifth of seven Marines to be tried in the slayings of five Vietnamese civilians near Hue May 5-6, had pleaded guilty to a charge of unpremeditated murder.

The sentence included a bad conduct discharge and forfeiture of all pay and allowances.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — The cause of alcoholism among workers isn't known, but the cost is: upwards of $4 billion a year.

And that figure is a conservative one, says Ross VonWiegand, industrial consultant to the National Council on Alcoholism. Some management sources put it as high as $7.5 billion a year.

"Our figures are those that can't be gone below," VonWiegand said. "We figure a minimum of 5.3 per cent of the total work force, or about 3 million employed people, has alcoholism. Every active alcoholic on the payroll nationally couldn't cost an employer less than $1,585 a year. But these are fairly conservative figures. They could run much higher."

The cost figure, VonWiegand said, includes lost time, sick leave pay, accident pay resulting from alcoholism, disability payments, and earlier retirement payments.

It also includes the hard-to-calculate costs run up by the hungover worker who is on the job but isn't performing as well as he would normally.

"There's a warm body there, but he isn't functioning," VonWiegand said. "He's a half-man."

Stephen Habbe, in an article dealing with alcoholism and the business community in the October issue of "The Conference Board Record," notes:

"Problem drinkers that cause their companies the greatest losses usually are fairly long-service employees in the 35-to-50 age range. A company is apt to have a considerable investment in these workers, and they are not easily replaced. This is especially true of those at the manager and executive echelons."

In an effort to combat alcoholism and its effects, Habbe said, "many companies that did not have alcohol-control programs in 1958 have them today."

He said The Conference Board made a study in 1958 and again this year of the views and attitudes of top executives of 100 companies on alcoholism and drinking problems. Fifty of those queried responded, he said, and, "although there are wide differences... the consensus shows concern for those with drinking problems and an interest in company programs of control and rehabilitation." Habbe said the latest study showed "a greater awareness on the part of the executive of the alcohol problem in business, and a new readiness to take steps to deal with it."

Ten years ago, he said, 21 of the 50 companies replied that if they did have an alcohol problem it was nothing to worry about but in the latest study only 16 gave this answer.

"Ten years ago, three companies said their problem with alcohol was serious enough to give them concern. Today nine are concerned. The remaining companies take mid positions."

While more companies today recognize the alcohol problem as a serious one, Habbe said, "this change gives little solace to serious students of alcoholism, who point out that relatively few companies perceive the true dimensions of the drinking problems in their organizations, and that still fewer have been motivated to the point of instituting control programs."

Von Wiegand agreed that while some progress was being made toward recognizing alcoholism as an illness "in the great majority of cases not too much progress has been made here."

Every company that doesn't have an alcoholism program, he said, "does have an unwritten policy that says, essentially, management will pay cash prizes and other economic premiums to any employee who can successfully conceal his alcoholism."

"The man who admits he has been out on a binge won't get sick pay. But if he can conceal this, he gets paid."

"The employee who no longer can conceal his alcoholism usually is fired."

Real Problem Is Minister's Wife

DEAR ABBY: For the umpteenth time a minister's wife has taken upon herself the impossible task of representing the clergy. This time it has to do with wedding fees, no less.

Might I encourage her to attend one of her husband's Bible classes, and there possibly learn that God has full attention on her husband's time to serve the people who called him and the community into which he was called.

Ministers are already working 24 hours a day, so "moonlighting" is out. He dare not take a double fee, but must return any fees to the rightful owner, namely, the congregation.

Maybe if her husband were to look on every marriage as an opportunity for worship than a duty, it would make his job a little easier. And the "thank you's" a little more meaningful. You may sign this,

Girl Slain By Officers; Youth Held

VAN WERT, Ohio (AP) — Armed robbery charges were filed Monday against Charles J. Waxler Jr., 19, the surviving member of what police described as a "Bonnie and Clyde" team of bandits.

He was lodged in the Van Wert County Jail late Sunday after being returned from New Haven, Ind. where his 16-year-old companion, Peggy Corbin of Woodbridge, Va., was killed in a gun battle with police.

Waxler, who gave addresses in Florida and North Carolina, is accused of taking $8 dollars early Sunday during the holdup of a service station near Delphos.

Police said Waxler took the money at gunpoint while Miss Corbin drove the car which was later reported stolen from Toledo.

Van Wert County sheriff's deputies pursued the auto into Indiana where Indiana State Police set up a roadblock. Waxler surrendered but the girl, according to officers, began shooting and was killed when police returned her fire.

Soviets Claim Czech Officials Don't Like Them

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda complained today that efforts of Soviet soldiers to establish friendly contacts with Czechoslovaks are still being rebuffed by some local officials.

"The number of contacts is increasing from day to day," the Communist party newspaper reported in a dispatch from Bratislava, "but often the hope of working people to meet Soviet soldiers runs into the open resistance of local authorities and party leaders."

Pravda admitted there had been a time following the Aug. 20 invasion when Soviet soldiers met with "passionate argument, insults and menaces."

But this behavior is now passing, Pravda said, and "the characteristic feature of these days is calm and comprehensive talks on how to live and act together in the future."

Muskie Meets With Heckling In Florida

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — War opponents and working men who either "sit this one out" or "turn to George Wallace" will be even more displeased after the presidential election, says Sen. Edmund S. Muskie.

The Democratic vice presidential candidate, who campaigns in Florida today, met the worst heckling of his campaign Monday at Syracuse University in New York.

The Maine senator was interrupted almost every time he tried to speak by a woman with a loud speaker. The woman, Miss Judith Mage, described as the vice-presidential candidate of the Peace and Freedom party, was supported by about two dozen war opponents, some of whom shouted obscenities.

Most in the crowd of about 3,500 persons booed the hecklers, and shouted to Muskie to continue speaking from his position atop the steps in front of the school chapel. At one point, several students, identified by a school spokesman as members of the varsity football team, moved in to stand among the demonstrators. Their presence allowed Muskie several moments of uninterrupted speech.

"You're beauties, you are," an angry Muskie told the small knot of hecklers when they continued to interrupt questions asked by students. Miss Mage, making frequent use of the bull horns challenged almost every statement made by the candidate and demanded he debate her. There were no arrests.

Top Law Officers Feel Community Relations Bad

By HARRY MOSKOS
Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — "When they took Clancy, or whatever name you give him, off the beat we started to lose a little bit in communication between the policeman and the neighborhood," says Police Chief Henry E. Lux, of Memphis, Tenn.

Lux's view reflects the concern over deteriorating police-community relations shown by law enforcement officials today at the 75th annual conference of the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

A hopeful note came from Lux, who added that "the trend is going back the other way now and beat men are back on the job to re-establish communication with the people."

Most officials agree with U.S. Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark who said in a talk Monday that police-community relations are the "most difficult and important law enforcement problem" of the decade.

While agreeing with Clark, many chiefs said in interviews they felt police have become the victims in deteriorating community relations simply because they represent constituted authority or the "establishment."

"Social ills and economic ills are the base of the problem," Lux says. "The public may not be against the police directly but we just happen to be the representatives of the establishment."

The sheriff of Los Angeles County, Peter Pitchess, feels permissiveness has aided the problem.

"This permissiveness has led to a disrespect for any constituted authority," the sheriff said.

"There has been great emphasis during the past few years placed on community-police relations, but it mostly has been on the side of law enforcement," he added. "Police try to relate to the community, but the community is not relating to law enforcement. Cooperation is not unilateral, it's bilateral."

law enforcement. Cooperation is not unilateral, it's bilateral."

Roscoe Bobo, city councilman from Ecorse, Mich., and a former assistant police chief of that city, believes the gap in the relations came about as "a gradual growing fear among people because of a few policemen abused their authority."

Leo A. Culloo, executive secretary of the New Jersey Police Training Commission, felt the question of police-community relations is only a byproduct of the real problem.

"The major problem is the screening, selecting and the fixing of officers," he said. "We have to eliminate those who are not fit for a policeman's job."

Arthur Outlaw, police commissioner for Mobile, Ala., also feels training is essential before police will have a better image.

"The pendulum is beginning to swing back in favor of the police," Outlaw said. "If we enforce the law equally among all ethnic groups we'll have the respect we deserve."

Priests Disagree With Papal Ban, Survey Shows

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Almost half the Roman Catholic diocesan priests in the United States disagree with Pope Paul's encyclical against artificial birth control, the National Catholic Reporter said today.

The Reporter, a national lay-edited weekly with offices in Kansas City, reported results of a survey in a copyrighted story appearing in its Oct. 9 issue.

The survey, the publication reports, shows the Pope's condemnation of artificial contraception had little effect in changing the minds of priests questioned.

His encyclical, entitled "Humanae Vitae," also has exerted little influence on the advice these priests give to married Catholics, the reporter says.

DEAR ABBY: May I say a few words to PASTOR'S WIFE who wrote in requesting that you remind the bridegroom to favor the minister with a monetary compensation?

This fall I will begin my study for the ministry, and I, along with my pastor, disagree with her request. A few months ago a letter was printed in our bulletin stating that a minister is a salaried official, paid by the church, and as such he is compensated for weddings, funerals, and other official occasions. It went on to say that he does not desire nor would he accept compensation for these duties.

If the minister's wife who wrote to you is fed up with the long hours and extra work her husband puts in for "thank you" weddings, then she is fed up with being a minister's wife.

A pastor is not on an eight-to-five shift, and should not expect to be paid for overtime.

A minister's wife who is all that interested in the extra dough her husband receives for performing a marriage ceremony, should have married a justice of the peace. Sincerely,

FUTURE PASTOR

DEAR ABBY: Re the minister's wife complaining about nonpaying bridegrooms, she should be a teacher's wife! Here are some of the off-duty chores teachers perform without pay: grading papers night after night; helping students after hours; taking tickets for school activities and supervising same; coaching groups for contests; directing school plays and collecting costumes, scenery, and settings; judging debates; taking students on field trips; and attending educational meetings. Also they are expected to teach Sunday School classes, belong to civic groups and direct scout activities—for nothing! They get NONE of the following benefits which most Protestant ministers get: paid housing without taxes; paid repairs, utilities and insurance for same; paid mileage, paid retirement; paid vacations; paid convention trips; a paid assistant; and expensive gifts at Christmas. In the same town, a minister and the average teacher might get about the same monthly salary, but the teacher gets paid only nine months and often uses the other three months to get more education—at his own expense. So, who should complain? Very truly yours,

TEACHER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: YOU should and you have.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from that nut from Elizabeth, N.J., whose boyfriend wears Texas-Style cowboy boots all the time just burned me up.

She said she thought cowboy boots were "out of place" for a well-dressed man in Elizabeth, N.J. Well, they're out of place for a well-dressed man in Houston, too!

Texas have enough sense to know where to wear cowboy boots and where NOT to wear them. We're not a bunch of bowlegged cowpokes who wear blue jeans, cowboy hats and cowboy boots everywhere we go. Sign me...

Muskie Meets With Heckling In Florida

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — War opponents and working men who either "sit this one out" or "turn to George Wallace" will be even more displeased after the presidential election, says Sen. Edmund S. Muskie.

The Democratic vice presidential candidate, who campaigns in Florida today, met the worst heckling of his campaign Monday at Syracuse University in New York.

The Maine senator was interrupted almost every time he tried to speak by a woman with a loud speaker. "The woman, Miss Judith Mage, described as the vice-presidential candidate of the Peace and Freedom party, was supported by about two dozen war opponents, some of whom shouted obscenities.

Most in the crowd of about 3,500 persons booed the hecklers, and shouted to Muskie to continue speaking from his position atop the steps in front of the school chapel. At one point, several students, identified by a school spokesman as members of the varsity football team, moved in to stand among the demonstrators. Their presence allowed Muskie several moments of uninterrupted speech.

"You're beauties, you are," an angry Muskie told the small knot of hecklers when they continued to interrupt questions asked by students. Miss Mage, making frequent use of the bull horns challenged almost every statement made by the candidate and demanded he debate her. There were no arrests.

Top Law Officers Feel Community Relations Bad

By HARRY MOSKOS
Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — "When they took Clancy, or whatever name you give him, off the beat we started to lose a little bit in communication between the policeman and the neighborhood," says Police Chief Henry E. Lux, of Memphis, Tenn.

Lux's view reflects the concern over deteriorating police-community relations shown by law enforcement officials today at the 75th annual conference of the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

A hopeful note came from Lux, who added that "the trend is going back the other way now and beat men are back on the job to re-establish communication with the people."

Most officials agree with U.S. Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark who said in a talk Monday that police-community relations are the "most difficult and important law enforcement problem" of the decade.

While agreeing with Clark, many chiefs said in interviews they felt police have become the victims in deteriorating community relations simply because they represent constituted authority or the "establishment."

"Social ills and economic ills are the base of the problem," Lux says. "The public may not be against the police directly but we just happen to be the representatives of the establishment."

The sheriff of Los Angeles County, Peter Pitchess, feels permissiveness has aided the problem.

"This permissiveness has led to a disrespect for any constituted authority," the sheriff said.

"There has been great emphasis during the past few years placed on community-police relations, but it mostly has been on the side of law enforcement," he added. "Police try to relate to the community, but the community is not relating to law enforcement. Cooperation is not unilateral, it's bilateral."

Roscoe Bobo, city councilman from Ecorse, Mich., and a former assistant police chief of that city, believes the gap in the relations came about as "a gradual growing fear among people because of a few policemen abused their authority."

Leo A. Culloo, executive secretary of the New Jersey Police Training Commission, felt the question of police-community relations is only a byproduct of the real problem.

"The major problem is the screening, selecting and the fixing of officers," he said. "We have to eliminate those who are not fit for a policeman's job."

Arthur Outlaw, police commissioner for Mobile, Ala., also feels training is essential before police will have a better image.

"The pendulum is beginning to swing back in favor of the police," Outlaw said. "If we enforce the law equally among all ethnic groups we'll have the respect we deserve."

Priests Disagree With Papal Ban, Survey Shows

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Almost half the Roman Catholic diocesan priests in the United States disagree with Pope Paul's encyclical against artificial birth control, the National Catholic Reporter said today.

The Reporter, a national lay-edited weekly with offices in Kansas City, reported results of a survey in a copyrighted story appearing in its Oct. 9 issue.

The survey, the publication reports, shows the Pope's condemnation of artificial contraception had little effect in changing the minds of priests questioned.

His encyclical, entitled "Humanae Vitae," also has exerted little influence on the advice these priests give to married Catholics, the reporter says.

Drop LeMay As Adviser To Rafferty

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Max Rafferty's campaign headquarters said Monday the Republican senatorial candidate is dropping Gen. Curtis LeMay from his advisory staff, but Rafferty said the idea won't his.

"It was done without my knowledge or my consent," he told newsmen at a campaign reception at Victorville, Calif.

The announcement was made in Los Angeles by Thomas C. Reed, Republican national committeeman, and Lyn Nofziger, former communications director for Gov. Ronald Reagan. Nofziger has been assigned to Rafferty's campaign against Alan Cranston, Democrat.

LeMay was recently named by George Wallace as his vice presidential running mate on the American Independent party ticket.

In a telegram, Nofziger and Reed said, Rafferty requested and accepted LeMay's resignation from the 100-member campaign advisory committee.

They said the wire cited LeMay's dismissal of nuclear weapons as "just another weapon in our arsenal," declaring: "I completely disagree with you both as to what you have done and what you have said."

In Victorville, Rafferty said, "I have nothing but the utmost respect for Gen. LeMay."

Earl Of Jersey Advocates Advertising, Insemination

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Earl of the Isle of Jersey sees advertising and artificial insemination of Jersey cattle as two possible ways of strengthening the dairy industry in the United States.

The earl, whose family name is Child Villiers, is in Columbus for the International Conference of the World Jersey Cattle Bureau, of which he is chairman. This is the first time the bureau has met in an American city.

Since freight costs and quarantines make shipping cattle into the United States virtually impossible, the earl said a representative of the Jersey enterprise is going to Washington Wednesday to seek permission of the U.S. Agriculture Department to import frozen semen of island bulls into this country.

"We have the healthiest cattle in the world," he said. "After all, Jersey is the home of the breed and every pure-bred Jersey in the world traces its ancestry back to the island."

No cattle have been allowed into the island for 200 years, he said.

The earl agreed with a suggestion made Monday by Gov. James A. Rhodes in a speech to the cattlemen, Rhodes suggested a "Madison Avenue approach" to milk marketing.

Because soft drink companies spend millions of dollars on advertising, the governor said, "per capita, you are selling less milk than you did last year, the year before that and two years before that."

Rhodes said better marketing is more important than improving the breed, to which the earl added, "what's the good of cows if nobody drinks milk?"

Dinner Meeting Set By Teacher's Assn.

Circleville Teacher's Assn. will hold its second meeting of the school year Wednesday evening, Oct. 9, at 6:30 in the high school cafeteria. It will be a dinner meeting, and each teacher is invited to bring a guest.

Program Chairman, Mrs. Doris Gillespie, announces that Brent Bell, a local citizen and teacher in the Circleville City Schools, will show pictures which he took during his summer tour of the Far East.

Something To Think About . . . An Air Of Anticipation

By JEAN CRIST

An air of anticipation is all around us as we wake to each new day to see what colors nature has painted her trees while we slept and then to answer the almost daily question of the children, "How many more days until Pumpkin Show?"

It won't be long now and the two biggest shows of the year will be in full swing in Circleville. Already the fall season has made its entrance and next week it's twin, Pumpkin Show, will begin.

As a native Circlevillian who has spent several autumn seasons of her life in Circleville I think fall and Pumpkin Show have a lot in common. They are nature's and Circleville's last, biggest and most flamboyant shows of the year, before the settling down to the slower and more disciplined pace of winter. Both are brief, colorful and thoroughly enjoyable.

The bright yellows, reds, and oranges of the autumn leaves will soon be matched by the multi-colored carnival rides that bring the downtown streets alive: The swirling, encircling leaves will mimic the fast-moving, twirling rides as they attempt to thrill the young enthusiasts who step into them for a few minutes of excitement.

As you drive down a country road the small trees and large trees, the fat and skinny ones, will combine with their marvelous variety of colors and shapes to form a parade that marches down a valley of brown earth and burnt orange grass.

It will appear much the same as the parade of bands marching down the street on a sunlit afternoon during the big show.

The handiwork of nature will be on display across the Ohio countryside along with the handiwork of the people of the area which will be displayed in many a store window and building.

Masses of colorful, orange pumpkins and green and yellow squash, which are given to us by nature every year at this time, will be stacked high in the middle of the Pumpkin Show for all to see. Many other pumpkins will be touched with the magic of a good cook and turned into succulent triangles of pure gastronomical delight.

The cotton candy will remind us of light, airy bundles of sparkling, silken spider webs that are seen gracing the trees and stretched across the grass this time of the year.

The juicy, red apples that but a short time ago decorated the trees in the orchards will be lined up like toy soldiers on the counters of the stands covered with shiny, red, candy uniforms and epaules of crushed nuts.

The briskness and vitality of the fall air will be matched only by the young who will seem to be in perpetual motion for four days. And perhaps, best of all, the pleasant feeling that we get when the bright, fall sun warms us will be repeated many times during the week to come as we meet old acquaintances whom we haven't seen for a long time.

It is a common feeling to us all in that we often wish we could take the beauty or enjoyment of a certain time and keep it. But life doesn't work this way. No matter how hard you try to put happiness in a box, put a lid on it and wrap it tightly, you will never have anything but an empty box. Happiness is fleeting and intangible and has to be enjoyed when it happens.

So it is with the autumn and Pumpkin Show, the enjoyment of the color and excitement must be savored and appreciated as it happens, for it can be kept only in the form of a pleasant memory.

Saxbe Says Vietnam War Is LBJ's

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) —William B. Saxbe, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate, said here Monday, "We are in Vietnam now because of the vanity of one man—LBJ."

Speaking at a GOP rally at Wampler's Ball Arena, Saxbe called the Johnson administration's involvement with Vietnam "unrealistic" and said the only solution is to plan now for an orderly withdrawal.

He said the efforts of Hubert H. Humphrey to disengage himself from the administration won't work. "It's the same crowd," Saxbe said, adding, "It wasn't a bunch of strangers who got us involved in Vietnam and the people who made the mistakes then are asking for another chance."

Saxbe reiterated his belief in law and order as a valid campaign issue, saying, "We are told by the administration that we never had it so good. But there is turmoil on the left and there is turmoil on the right. What we wouldn't give right now for just a little peace and quiet."

Wallace Office Is Firebombed

RIDGECREST, Calif. (AP) — For the second time in a week, a George Wallace for President headquarters in California has been damaged by vandalism.

Two firebombs shattered the front windows of the office here early Monday and burned some of the furniture. No one was injured. Office manager John Cooper said he had received threats over the telephone.

Last week the central Los Angeles headquarters of the American Independent party candidate was hit by bullets.

NATO Ministers Meet With Rusk

NEW YORK (AP) — Foreign ministers of 12 North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations met with Secretary of State Dean Rusk Monday night and agreed that the strategic military balance in Europe has changed as a result of the Soviet-led occupation of Czechoslovakia.

As a direct outcome of the meeting, NATO foreign ministers have scheduled a meeting in Europe next month to decide what measures to take to meet the drastic shift in military deployment by Soviet troops.

No specific date was set for the meeting, but it is expected to be Nov. 14-16. It will be followed in December by a meeting of defense ministers of the NATO member countries.

Painesville Police Dispute Continues

PAINESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Painesville police, who are seeking 20 per cent pay increases, asked Council Monday night to recognize Fraternal Order of Police Lodge 90 as their bargaining agent.

Council President Charles E. Cannon said Council will consider the request. He said recognition of the FOP lodge might open the way for use of professional negotiators to bargain for the police.

Bargaining in the past has been by committees representing police and the council.

Drop LeMay As Adviser To Rafferty

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Max Rafferty's campaign headquarters said Monday the Republican senatorial candidate is dropping Gen. Curtis LeMay from his advisory staff, but Rafferty said the idea wasn't his.

"It was done without my knowledge or my consent," he told newsmen at a campaign reception at Victorville, Calif.

The announcement was made in Los Angeles by Thomas C. Reed, Republican national committeeman, and Lyn Nofziger, former communications director for Gov. Ronald Reagan. Nofziger has been assigned to Rafferty's campaign against Alan Cranston, Democrat.

LeMay was recently named by George Wallace as his vice presidential running mate on the American Independent party ticket.

In a telegram, Nofziger and Reed said, Rafferty requested and accepted LeMay's resignation from the 100-member campaign advisory committee.

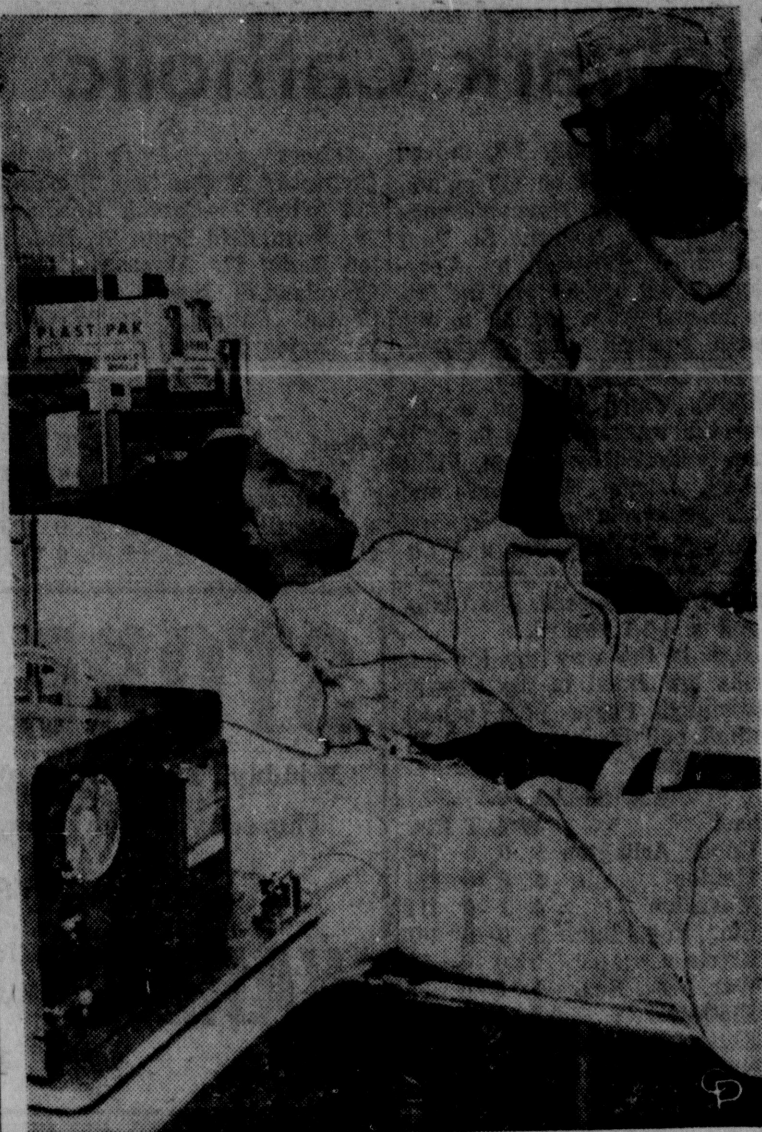

They said the wire cited LeMay's dismissal of nuclear weapons as "just another weapon in our arsenal," declaring: "I completely disagree with you both as to what you have done and what you have said."

In Victorville, Rafferty said, "I have nothing but the utmost respect for Gen. LeMay."

Earl Of Jersey Advocates Advertising, Insemination

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Earl of the Isle of Jersey sees advertising and artificial insemination of Jersey cattle as two possible ways of strengthening the dairy industry in the United States.

The earl, whose family name is Child Villiers, is in Columbus for the International Conference of the World Jersey Cattle Bureau, of which he is chairman. This is the first time the bureau has met in an American city.

Since freight costs and quarantines make shipping cattle into the United States virtually impossible, the earl said a representative of the Jersey enterprise is going to Washington Wednesday to seek permission of the U.S. Agriculture Department to import frozen semen of island bulls into this country.

"We have the healthiest cattle in the world," he said. "After all, Jersey is the home of the breed and every pure-bred Jersey in the world traces its ancestry back to the island."

No cattle have been allowed into the island for 200 years, he said.

The earl agreed with a suggestion made Monday by Gov. James A. Rhodes in a speech to the cattlemen. Rhodes suggested a "Madison Avenue approach" to milk marketing.

Because soft drink companies spend millions of dollars on advertising, the governor said, "per capita, you are selling less milk than you did last year, the year before that and two years before that."

Rhodes said better marketing is more important than improving the breed, to which the earl added, "what's the good of cows if nobody drinks milk?"

Dinner Meeting Set By Teacher's Assn.

Circleville Teacher's Assn. will hold its second meeting of the school year Wednesday evening, Oct. 9, at 6:30 in the high school cafeteria. It will be a dinner meeting, and each teacher is invited to bring a guest.

Program Chairman, Mrs. Doris Gillespie, announces that Brent Bell, a local citizen and teacher in the Circleville City Schools, will show pictures which he took during his summer tour of the Far East.

Something To Think About . . . An Air Of Anticipation

By JEAN CRIST

An air of anticipation is all around us as we wake to each new day to see what colors nature has painted her trees while we slept and then to answer the almost daily question of the children, "How many more days until Pumpkin Show?"

It won't be long now and the two biggest shows of the year will be in full swing in Circleville. Already the fall season has made its entrance and next week it's twin, Pumpkin Show, will begin.

As a native Circlevillian who has spent several autumn seasons of her life in Circleville I think fall and Pumpkin Show have a lot in common. They are nature's and Circleville's last, biggest and most flamboyant shows of the year, before the settling down to the slower and more disciplined pace of winter. Both are brief, colorful and thoroughly enjoyable.

The bright yellows, reds, and oranges of the autumn leaves will soon be matched by the multi-colored carnival rides that bring the downtown streets alive: The swirling, encircling leaves will mimic the fast-moving, twirling rides as they attempt to thrill the young enthusiasts who step into them for a few minutes of excitement.

As you drive down a country road the small trees and large trees, the fat and skinny ones, will combine with their marvelous variety of colors and shapes to form a parade that marches down a valley of brown earth and burnt orange grass.

It will appear much the same as the parade of bands marching down the street on a sunlit afternoon during the big show.

The handiwork of nature will be on display across the Ohio countryside along with the handiwork of the people of the area which will be displayed in many a store window and building.

Masses of colorful, orange pumpkins and green and yellow squash, which are given to us by nature every year at this time, will be stacked high in the middle of the Pumpkin Show for all to see. Many other pumpkins will be touched with the magic of a good cook and turned into succulent triangles of pure gastronomic delight.

The cotton candy will remind us of light, airy bundles of sparkling, silken spider webs that are seen gracing the trees and stretched across the grass this time of the year.

The juicy, red apples that but a short time ago decorated the trees in the orchards will be lined up like toy soldiers on the counters of the stands covered with shiny, red, candy uniforms and epaules of crushed nuts.

The briskness and vitality of the fall air will be matched only by the young who will seem to be in perpetual motion for four days. And perhaps, best of all, the pleasant feeling that we get when the bright, fall sun warms us will be repeated many times during the week to come as we meet old acquaintances whom we haven't seen for a long time.

It is a common feeling to us all in that we often wish we could take the beauty or enjoyment of a certain time and keep it. But life doesn't work this way. No matter how hard you try to put happiness in a box, put a lid on it and wrap it tightly, you will never have anything but an empty box. Happiness is fleeting and intangible and has to be enjoyed when it happens.

So it is with the autumn and Pumpkin Show, the enjoyment of the color and excitement must be savored and appreciated as it happens, for it can be kept only in the form of a pleasant memory.

Saxbe Says Vietnam War Is LBJ's

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — William B. Saxbe, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate, said here Monday, "We are in Vietnam now because of the vanity of one man—LBJ."

Speaking at a GOP rally at Wampler's Ball Arena, Saxbe called the Johnson administration's involvement with Vietnam "unrealistic" and said the only solution is to plan now for an orderly withdrawal.

He said the efforts of Hubert H. Humphrey to disengage himself from the administration won't work. "It's the same crowd," Saxbe said, adding, "It wasn't a bunch of strangers who got us involved in Vietnam and the people who made the mistakes then are asking for another chance."

Saxbe reiterated his belief in law and order as a valid campaign issue, saying, "We are told by the administration that we never had it so good. But there is turmoil on the left and there is turmoil on the right. What we wouldn't give right now for just a little peace and quiet."

Wallace Office Is Firebombed

RIDGECREST, Calif. (AP) — For the second time in a week, a George Wallace for President headquarters in California has been damaged by vandalism.

Two firebombs shattered the front windows of the office here early Monday and burned some of the furniture. No one was injured. Office manager John Cooper said he had received threats over the telephone.

Last week the central Los Angeles headquarters of the American Independent party candidate was hit by bullets.

NATO Ministers Meet With Rusk

NEW YORK (AP) — Foreign ministers of 12 North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations met with Secretary of State Dean Rusk Monday night and agreed that the strategic military balance in Europe has changed as a result of the Soviet-led occupation of Czechoslovakia.

As a direct outcome of the meeting, NATO foreign ministers have scheduled a meeting in Europe next month to decide what measures to take to meet the drastic shift in military deployment by Soviet troops.

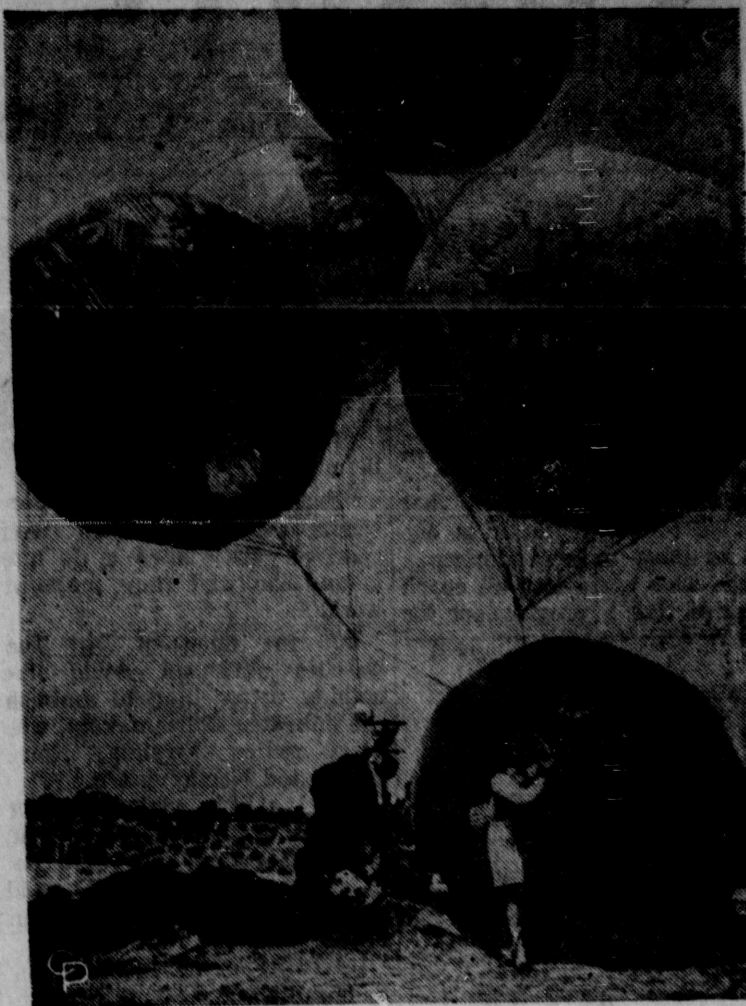

No specific date was set for the meeting, but it is expected to be Nov. 14-16. It will be followed in December by a meeting of defense ministers of the NATO member countries.

Painesville Police Dispute Continues

PAINESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Painesville police, who are seeking 20 per cent pay increases, asked Council Monday night to recognize Fraternal Order of Police Lodge 90 as their bargaining agent.

Council President Charles E. Cannon said Council will consider the request. He said recognition of the FOP lodge might open the way for use of professional negotiators to bargain for the police.

Bargaining in the past has been by committees representing police and the council.

Hayes Eyes Boilermakers, Shoots For Upset By OSU

By HAL PARIS
Associated Press Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Purdue Coach Jack Mollenkopf may be delighted to hear that W. W. (Woody) Hayes is one of his most ardent admirers. The Ohio State football coach sounded like a press agent for the No. 1 ranked Boilermakers at his Monday press luncheon. "I'm a little anxious to see them myself," Hayes said. "Purdue has splendid personnel and is extremely well coached. They have a definite game plan and they make it work."

But the dean of Big Ten coaches obviously would like nothing better than to ambush the unbeaten Boilermakers, who have routed Virginia, Notre Dame and Northwestern. Ohio, with victories over Southern Methodist and Oregon, is fourth-ranked and could enhance its national rating and conference title hopes with an upset.

Hayes is eager to atone for a humiliating 41-6 setback to Purdue a year ago. But it won't be easy. "Any team that can stay in a game with them deserves a real high compliment," Hayes noted.

But Hayes didn't spend all his time extolling Purdue. Obviously irked by a controversial tackle that decked quarterback Rex Kern in the Oregon game, Hayes said "It's open season on quarterbacks this year."

Kern, the heralded sophomore who has put new tang in the Buckeye attack, suffered a jaw injury when he took a headgear in the face. But X-rays showed no fracture and he will play against Purdue.

"When you see it happen, you don't like it. This is too great a game to let anything like that come into the picture."

The Buckeye boss was quick to point out he wasn't accusing Oregon of dirty football. "Let's just say it was rough football, I didn't say dirty."

American Hockey League Opens

BALTIMORE (AP) — The American Hockey League opens its 33rd season tonight as the veteran Baltimore Clippers entertain the young Cleveland Barons.

The rest of the league, except for the defending Calder Cup champion Rochester Americans, swings into action Friday.

The new Cleveland coach hasn't been named, but the Barons have been handled in training by Floyd Curry, former Quebec coach.

Hill Is Traded To Minnesota

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — After eight years, King Hill has flown the Eagles' coop and headed north to Viking country. "He is a good quarterback and it looks as if we're in contention," said Coach Bud Grant of the Minnesota Vikings, who obtained Hill Monday in a trade with the Philadelphia Eagles.

The Vikings gave the Eagles an undisclosed draft choice for the 11-year National Football League veteran, according to Philadelphia Coach Joe Kuharich.

No. 2 ranked Mentor closed the gap a bit but was still 37 points back of the frontrunners. Mentor, also 5-0, smothered Midpark 31-0 while Arlington routed Lima Senior 49-14.

The top two teams announced Monday they will battle each other in the Sept. 5 opener for both next season.

Once-beaten Massillon jumped from fifth to third place on the strength of a 16-8 victory over Niles that snapped the Red Dragons' string of home successes at 63. Niles slipped to ninth place.

Cincinnati Roger Bacon was fourth, followed by Elyria, Warren, Western Reserve, Shelby, Kettering Alter, Niles and Struthers.

Western Reserve, making its first appearance in the charmed circle, moved into the limelight after stopping Warren Harding, 14-6.

Among the top ten, only Massillon and Niles have suffered defeats.

There was a new leader in the Class A ranks after Waverly, a Class AA school, edged Portsmouth Notre Dame, 8-0, that dropped the Irish into the fifth slot.

Newark Catholic, 5-0, moved into the top spot on 112 points, 16 more than Mechanicsburg could muster. Norwalk St. Paul was third followed by Cory-Rawson. All are 5-0 and the latter leaped from No. 10 to the fourth position after whipping Liberty Benton, 67-0.

Dixie, which suffered a tie over the weekend, was in sixth place followed by Edison, Paint Valley, Lorain St. Mary and West Jefferson.

Broom Maker's Son Plays Key Role In World Series

DETROIT (AP) — Al Kalline, son of a Baltimore broom maker, is fully appreciating his first World Series and the key role he is playing for the Detroit Tigers.

"Things mean more to you as a man when you have to wait," Kalline said in the Tiger dressing room Monday after stroking the hit that made him the hero of a 5-3 victory over St. Louis.

"You never appreciate anything as much when it's given to you as you do when you have to wait."

And Kalline knows what it is to wait. For it's been 16 years since he started playing for the Tigers, and it's taken them 23 to reach the World Series.

"The Series has been everything I thought it would be," he said as he leaned against his cubicle in the dressing room. "I never thought I'd be so nervous before the first game."

But that's probably why Kalline is hitting .381 today, following a 2-for-4 performance in which he stroked a two-run single with the bases loaded that scored the tying and go-ahead runs and kept Detroit in the Series after they trailed three games to one.

"I always thought I was a better player under circumstances like a World Series," Kalline said. "The big crowd, all the noise. It's gives you that extra incentive."

During the season, Kalline seemed headed for a seat on the bench during the World Series.

Slowed by a broken right forearm and a serious groin pull, he had lost his job in right field. When he began to come around, a young trio of Mickey Stanley, Willie Horton and Jim Northrup blocked his return to the outfield.

"I don't deserve to play in the Series," Kalline said as the season drew to a close. "It's killing me, but I know what Mayo Smith is up against."

What Mayo Smith, the Detroit tough decision in which he had to measure sentiment against reality. When Smith was finished measuring, Stanley was at shortstop and Kalline in right field.

Now Al not only is leading the Tigers with his bat, he has been

DEER HUNTING TIPS

TO KEEP THE BORE OF YOUR DEER RIFLE CLEAR, PLACE A PIECE OF SCOTCH TAPE OVER THE MUZZLE. THIS WILL BLOW OFF WHEN YOU ARE READY TO FIRE.

THE DEER'S HIND FEET HIT THE GROUND AHEAD OF ITS FOREFEET WHEN RUNNING, WITH THE TRACKS SIDE BY SIDE.

DON'T STOP THE SWING WHEN YOU ARE READY TO PULL THE TRIGGER, YOU MAY MISS YOUR GAME.

IF YOU ARE DRAGGING OUT YOUR DOWNED BUCK, BE CAREFUL SOME OTHER HUNTER DOESN'T SHOOT AT YOU. APPLY RED-ORANGE FLUORESCENT TAPE TO ITS HORNS.

Kaline Keeps Tigers Alive

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Now that the Detroit Tigers have forced the World Series into at least a sixth game, Manager Mayo Smith has the problem of selecting a pitcher for the game.

The Tigers handed their manager the problem Monday by defeating St. Louis 5-3 and cutting the Cardinals' edge to three games to two.

Al Kaline's two-run single in the seventh inning sparked the victory, but there were other key factors as well.

There was a crucial play by catcher Bill Freehan on Lou Brock at the plate, Willie Horton's throw to nail Brock and a courageous comeback pitching effort by Mickey Lolich and his single that triggered the winning three-run rally.

The teams had the day off today, except for brief workouts — the Cardinals in St. Louis and the Tigers in Detroit — but Smith had to ponder Wednesday's game, which will be played in St. Louis. His major problem was a starting pitcher.

It could be Earl Wilson, who left the third game with a pulled hamstring muscle in his right leg, or if Wilson can't go, it could be Joe Spina, who relieved Denny McLain in Sunday's contest.

And Smith didn't rule out the possibility of coming back with McLain, the 31-game winner who lost the first and fourth games.

Lolich joined Gibson in the two-game victory circle but only after surviving a three-run Cardinal outburst in the first inning.

"He pitched a helluva a game," said Orlando Cepeda, who capped the explosion with a two-run homer, his second homer of the Series. "He got stronger as the game went along. He's a good pitcher. I can't see why he didn't win 20 games."

The motorcycle-riding right-hander settled down so effectively that he scattered six hits the rest of the way didn't allow another run.

He almost didn't get the chance to finish the game, though. The turning point for him came in the seventh inning when leadoff batter Don Wert struck out.

"If Wert had gotten on," Smith said, "I would've used a pinch hitter. But when he didn't, I figured Mickey had been pitching well and we had two more shots at them."

"I was very much surprised he let me hit," said Lolich, who rapped a home run and a single in the second game.

Lolich singled and, after Hoerner relieved starter Nelson Briles, went to second as Dick McAuliffe singled and to third on a walk to Mickey Stanley. That's when Kaline singled across the tying and lead runs, and Norm Cash added a run-scoring single.

At that point the Cardinals had to think back to the fifth inning when Brock, the hitting and base running star of the Series, was thrown out at the plate trying to score from second on Julian Javier's single to left. St. Louis led 3-2 at the time.

There were some people, including Lolich, who didn't think Horton would even try to get Brock at the plate.

"As fast as Brock is, I didn't even figure there would be a throw," Lolich said.

The ball wound up in Freehan's glove, though, and Brock, who didn't slide, was out.

Brock, who has seven stolen bases and a .524 average in the Series, said he didn't slide "because I didn't think I had to and because of the way Freehan had the plate blocked."

"I scored on the play," Brock insisted. "The television replay showed I beat it. I saw it on the monitor in our dugout."

Umpire Doug Harvey ruled otherwise, and the play gave Freehan an extra lift to go with the one he got when he threw Brock out when he tried to steal a Series record eighth base in the third inning.

"I don't have any animosity against the man," Freehan said. "It's not a hate thing like he's been stealing all those bases and I'm going to get him. But it meant something to me with the Series I've been having."

The Series Freehan has been having is a zero for 16 Series. Dal Maxvill of St. Louis is the only other regular who doesn't have a hit. The shortstop also is 0-16.

Kaline Keeps Tigers Alive

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Now that the Detroit Tigers have forced the World Series into at least a sixth game, Manager Mayo Smith has the problem of selecting a pitcher for the game.

The Tigers handed their manager the problem Monday by defeating St. Louis 5-3 and cutting the Cardinals' edge to three games to two.

Al Kaline's two-run single in the seventh inning sparked the victory, but there were other key factors as well.

There was a crucial play by catcher Bill Freehan on Lou Brock at the plate, Willie Horton's throw to nail Brock and a courageous comeback pitching effort by Mickey Lolich and his single that triggered the winning three-run rally.

The teams had the day off today, except for brief workouts — the Cardinals in St. Louis and the Tigers in Detroit — but Smith had to ponder Wednesday's game, which will be played in St. Louis. His major problem was a starting pitcher.

It could be Earl Wilson, who left the third game with a pulled hamstring muscle in his right leg, or if Wilson can't go, it could be Joe Spina, who relieved Denny McLain in Sunday's contest.

And Smith didn't rule out the possibility of coming back with McLain, the 31-game winner who lost the first and fourth games.

Lolich joined Gibson in the two-game victory circle but only after surviving a three-run Cardinal outburst in the first inning.

"He pitched a helluva a game," said Orlando Cepeda, who capped the explosion with a two-run homer, his second homer of the Series. "He got stronger as the game went along. He's a good pitcher. I can't see why he didn't win 20 games."

The motorcycle-riding right-hander settled down so effectively that he scattered six hits the rest of the way didn't allow another run.

He almost didn't get the chance to finish the game, though. The turning point for him came in the seventh inning when leadoff batter Don Wert struck out.

"If Wert had gotten on," Smith said, "I would've used a pinch hitter. But when he didn't, I figured Mickey had been pitching well and we had two more shots at them."

"I was very much surprised he let me hit," said Lolich, who rapped a home run and a single in the second game.

Lolich singled and, after Hoerner relieved starter Nelson Briles, went to second as Dick McAuliffe singled and to third on a walk to Mickey Stanley. That's when Kaline singled across the tying and lead runs, and Norm Cash added a run-scoring single.

At that point the Cardinals had to think back to the fifth inning when Brock, the hitting and base running star of the Series, was thrown out at the plate trying to score from second on Julian Javier's single to left. St. Louis led 3-2 at the time.

There were some people, including Lolich, who didn't think Horton would even try to get Brock at the plate.

"As fast as Brock is, I didn't even figure there would be a throw," Lolich said.

The ball wound up in Freehan's glove, though, and Brock, who didn't slide, was out.

Brock, who has seven stolen bases and a .324 average in the Series, said he didn't slide "because I didn't think I had to and because of the way Freehan had the plate blocked."

"I scored on the play," Brock insisted. "The television replay showed I beat it. I saw it on the monitor in our dugout."

Umpire Doug Harvey ruled otherwise, and the play gave Freehan an extra lift to go with the one he got when he threw Brock out when he tried to steal a Series record eighth base in the third inning.

"I don't have any animosity against the man," Freehan said. "It's not a hate thing like he's been stealing all those bases and I'm going to get him. But it meant something to me with the Series I've been having."

The Series Freehan has been having is a zero for 16 Series. Dal Maxvill of St. Louis is the only other regular who doesn't have a hit. The shortstop also is 0-16.

Orient Councilman Seeks Community Park, Equipment

Richard Rush, Orient village councilman, is renewing his efforts to secure a community park for the youngsters of the northern Pickaway County village.

Rush approached Pickaway County Commissioners Monday with a request for the playground equipment and picnic tables at the Children's Home that has been officially closed.

The commission told Rush that his was the first request and would be given consideration when the Child Welfare Board takes final action in abandoning the home.

Rush has been working for several years to get a park for youngsters in the community and things appear to be finally working out.

A LEASE for about five acres of land owned by Orient State Hospital has been approved and neighboring land owners have agreed to add some of their land to the park site.

The councilman noted Monday that not a great deal can be done until spring, but he would like to at least see some grass seed planted and the ground leveled before cold weather sets in.

To keep the ball rolling during the winter months, Rush and a recreation committee have planned a series of parties for the children of the village.

The village residents have already raised over $100 towards equipment purchase at a bake sale, but Rush has high hopes of securing the playground equipment from the Children's Home and funds raised by the community could be used for other needs.

A vacant lot owned by the Belt Corp., Orient, had been used by youngsters for a number of years. However, the firm has announced plans for expansion leaving the children without a playground.

Vernon Belt, owner of the firm, along with other individuals have offered to help with the park but more money is needed than the community will be able to provide, Rush claims.

HE IS hopeful others in Pickaway County and Central Ohio will want to donate to the park in exchange for an honorary membership allowing them to use the park.

Contributions to the park fund may be made by contacting Rush at Box 464, Orient, O.

lowest weekly enemy toll reported in more than two months. It compared to 2,868 enemy claimed killed by allied forces the previous week and 3,380 two weeks ago.

At the same time, South Vietnamese casualties for last week were reported as 322 killed and 1,065 wounded. This compared to 316 government soldiers killed and 1,230 wounded the previous week.

Coinciding with reports that the enemy might be planning "something big" were unusually heavy raids by U.S. Air Force B52 bombers, during the 24-hour reporting period ending at noon today.

The eight-jet Stratofortresses swept into the southern end of North Vietnam for the first time in nearly three weeks to pound artillery and antiaircraft positions, truck parks and supply areas 6 and 12 miles north-northwest of the U.S. combat base at Con Thien.

Twelve of the bombers dumped 375 tons of explosives on the enemy positions.

More than 60 other B52s dropped 2,000 tons of bombs on troops concentrations, infiltration corridors, storage areas and bunker complexes from the Mekong Delta to the central highlands.

Four raids centered on troop concentrations northwest and northeast of Saigon, the closest only 27 miles from the capital.

U.S. fighter-bombers flew 133 missions over North Vietnam's southern panhandle Monday and pilots reported destroying or damaging 35 trucks and 29 boats carrying war supplies into the South.

Taking part in the sweep northwest of Saigon were men of the U.S. 25th Division and the 101st Airborne Division.

Dope Raid In Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Seven arrests resulted Monday when narcotics squadmen searched a North Side apartment. Two of those arrested walked into the apartment while the search was in progress, police said.

One of the late arrivals carried a sack of marijuana, the police report added.

Marital found in the apartment included marijuana, LSD and two syringes. A total of 17 charges were filed against the seven young people.

Those arrested were identified as Susan Rodi, 20, and Connie Lou Mounts, 19, who live in the apartment; Allen T. Carden, 23, Worthington; Dennis C. Distl, 20, Mansfield; Robert L. Fox, 21, Spirit Lake, Iowa; Thomas G. Burshears, 19, Pittsburgh, and Roger A. Krickbaum, 20, Upper Arlington.

Congress Pushes For Friday Adjournment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders see no reason why the 90th Congress can't adjourn by the end of this week.

Only President Johnson, they say could upset plans for members to go home by Friday and campaign for re-election. All 435 House seats and one-third of the 100 Senate seats are before the voters next month.

The President could prolong the session by sending another nomination for chief justice to the Senate, which failed last week to confirm the nomination of Abe Fortas to that position. The President withdrew the

City Bond Issues Up

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio cities have issued more than $280 million in tax free industrial revenue bonds in the last year and a half, the Ohio Department of Development reported today.

The department said that the recent $45 million Canton issue will be used for a new White Motor Corp. engine plant, expected to be completed by late 1971.

F. P. Neuenschwander, state development director, noted that this is the 35th industrial expansion to be financed under the revenue bond financing program. Under that program, which went into effect in June, 1967, Ohio has issued more bonds than any other state in a comparable period of time.

Robert Friley, 30, Ashville, injured his thumb on the edge of a table.

Carl Ross, 30, of 348 Logan St., received a laceration of his scalp when a telephone fell while working.

John Ruggles, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Ruggles, Route 1, Amanda, fell out of a tree fracturing his left elbow.

Scott Selvaige, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Selvaige, Route 1, Amanda, received a laceration to the corner of his mouth when he fell at school.

Paul Woods, 31, Route 1, Stoutsville, was treated for a foreign object in his left eye.

The current session started Jan. 15.

With the court fight apparently out of the way, Senate and the House sped up consideration of some remaining measures that must be disposed of. Adjournment fever was likely to hasten the action.

One of the major money bills, up for final Senate action today, is an $18.4 billion measure for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the Labor Department.

It already has passed the House but in slightly different form.

Senate and House conferees were drafting final versions of the annual defense and foreign-aid money bills. Differences between the two branches were not considered wide enough to endanger adjournment.

The final money bill of the session, a sharply-trimmed $101.7 million catch-all measure, was on today's House docket. Opponents of reductions in funds for new housing programs and the expanded food stamp program were expected to try to get more money.

The bill has not yet been considered by the Senate but was slated for a quick trip through that branch.

Also on the House calendar is a Senate-passed bill to make it possible for presidential candidates Richard M. Nixon, Hubert H. Humphrey and George C. Wallace to engage in a television debate if they want to without giving equal time to other candidates.

One more major measure also is in the works. It is a compromise version of separate bills designed to control interstate traffic in rifles and shotguns.

Numerous less controversial bills are likely to move through in the closing days.

But it appeared unlikely that the nuclear nonproliferation treaty would survive the rush for adjournment. The Senate has shown no inclination to take it up and possibly delay adjournment indefinitely.

Taft To Open 'Coffee House'

CINCINNATI (AP) — U. S. Rep. Robert Taft Jr. will officially open a coffee house here Saturday aimed at winning young votes and not at making money.

Carl Rubin, campaign manager in the first district here for the Ohio Republican, said the nation has entered into a new era of politics and young people like to sip coffee while talking politics.

Rubin explained that "Bob's Place" is an experiment. But "if it works, you'll see Taft coffee houses all over Ohio in his next statewide race," Rubin said apparently referring to the office of governor which will be up for grabs in 1970.

U.S. Forces ... Congress Pushes For Friday Adjournment

lowest weekly enemy toll reported in more than two months. It compared to 2,866 enemy claimed killed by allied forces the previous week and 3,380 two weeks ago.

At the same time, South Vietnamese casualties for last week were reported as 322 killed and 1,065 wounded. This compared to 316 government soldiers killed and 1,230 wounded the previous week.

Coinciding with reports that the enemy might be planning "something big" were unusually heavy raids by U.S. Air Force B-52 bombers, during the 24-hour reporting period ending at noon today.

The eight-jet Stratofortresses swept into the southern end of North Vietnam for the first time in nearly three weeks to pound artillery and antiaircraft positions, truck parks and supply areas 6 and 12 miles north-northwest of the U.S. combat base at Con Thien.

Twelve of the bombers dumped 375 tons of explosives on the enemy positions.

More than 60 other B-52s dropped 2,000 tons of bombs on troops concentrations, infiltration corridors, storage areas and bunker complexes from the Mekong Delta to the central highlands.

Four raids centered on troop concentrations northwest and northeast of Saigon, the closest only 27 miles from the capital.

U.S. fighter-bombers flew 133 missions over North Vietnam's southern panhandle Monday and pilots reported destroying or damaging 35 trucks and 29 boats carrying war supplies into the South.

Taking part in the sweep northwest of Saigon were men of the U.S. 25th Division and the 101st Airborne Division.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders see no reason why the 90th Congress can't adjourn by the end of this week.

Only President Johnson, they say could upset plans for members to go home by Friday and campaign for re-election. All 435 House seats and one-third of the 100 Senate seats are before the voters next month.

The President could prolong the session by sending another nomination for chief justice to the Senate, which failed last week to confirm the nomination of Abe Fortas to that position. The President withdrew the nomination at Fortas' request. Senate leaders said they have no indication the President will make a second attempt to try to name a successor to Chief Justice Earl Warren, who wants to retire.

EMERGENCIES
Robert Friley, 30, Ashville, injured his thumb on the edge of a table.

Carl Ross, 30, of 348 Logan St., received a laceration of his scalp when a telephone fell while working.

John Ruggles, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Ruggles, Route 1, Amanda, fell out of a tree fracturing his left elbow.

Scott Selva, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Selva, Route 1, Amanda, received a laceration to the corner of his mouth when he fell at school.

Paul Woods, 31, Route 1, Stoutsville, was treated for a foreign object in his left eye.

The current session started Jan. 15.

With the court fight apparently out of the way, Senate and the House sped up consideration of some remaining measures that must be disposed of. Adjournment fever was likely to hasten the action.

One of the major money bills, up for final Senate action today, is an $18.4 billion measure for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the Labor Department.

It already has passed the House but in slightly different form.

Senate and House conferees were drafting final versions of the annual defense and foreign-aid money bills. Differences between the two branches were not considered wide enough to endanger adjournment.

The final money bill of the session, a sharply-trimmed $101.7 million catch-all measure, was on today's House docket. Opponents of reductions in funds for new housing programs and the expanded food stamp program were expected to try to get more money.

The bill has not yet been considered by the Senate but was slated for a quick trip through that branch.

Also on the House calendar is a Senate-passed bill to make it possible for presidential candidates Richard M. Nixon, Hubert H. Humphrey and George C. Wallace to engage in a television debate if they want to without giving equal time to other candidates.

One more major measure also is in the works. It is a compromise version of separate bills designed to control interstate traffic in rifles and shotguns.

Numerous less controversial bills are likely to move through in the closing days. But it appeared unlikely that the nuclear nonproliferation treaty would survive the rush for adjournment. The Senate has shown no inclination to take it up and possibly delay adjournment indefinitely.

Taft To Open 'Coffee House'

CINCINNATI (AP) — U. S. Rep. Robert Taft Jr. will officially open a coffee house here Saturday aimed at winning young votes and not at making money.

Carl Rubin, campaign manager in the first district here for the Ohio Republican, said the nation has entered into a new era of politics and young people like to sip coffee while talking politics.

Rubin explained that "Bob's Place" is an experiment. But "if it works, you'll see Taft coffee houses all over Ohio in his next statewide race," Rubin said apparently referring to the office of governor which will be up for grabs in 1970.
